MITCHELL CHALLENGES ENTIRE COURT

Washington, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—After having secured the retirement of three members of the court martial chosen to try him, Col. William Mitchell late today challenged the jurisdiction of the court. Through his counsel the colonel pleaded that the specifications against him did not constitute any offence properly falling under the articles of war, and that a court martial therefore was without authority to try the case.

ENTIRE CREW OF C. G. 187 TO FACE TRIAL

New London, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The entire crew of the coast guard boat 187 will face court martial for the alleged acceptance of a case of liquor from a rum runner, according to Commander F. H. Young, commander of the base here. Pinas Palma, a cook on the 187, arrested with eight quarts of liquor in his possession, told police he was given the liquor by the commander of the 187 for silence.

CHARGES PREJUDICE TO 2; BITTER CLASH FOLLOWS NEW DEFI

Washington, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—Colonel William Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the Army Air Service, started off his court-martial today with three victories.

On the ground that two of the generals sitting as his judges were prejudiced against him, personally and officially, he successfully challenged their right to sit in judgment upon him, and they retired. Then he filed a peremptory challenge and another retired.

One of them was Major-General Charles Summerall, the presiding officer of the court. Another was Brigadier General Albert Bowley.

The third was Major General Fred W. Sladen.

FITZ RAPS NICHOLS ON AUTO PARADE JAM

Drawing a long "Dearo" head and swinging all the way from the floor, John F. Fitzgerald, one-time Mayor, moved in a fervid attack today on Malcolm E. Nichols, mayoralty candidate, for cluttering up the city during the noon rush with an auto parade for which no permit was issued.

In an address at the Boston Fish Pier, on behalf of Joseph H. O'Neil's candidacy, ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, excusing himself for tardiness, said:

"I was held up in traffic by a campaign parade for Nichols, consisting of nearly 100 automobiles. After arriving here I looked up the matter and found that no permit had been issued for such a parade, yet hundreds of cars were held up and streets in the busy downtown section blocked for half a mile by this parade.

RAPS NICHOLS' PARADERS.

"In view of the bad traffic conditions in Boston, this does not look like good judgment on the part of a man who aspires to be mayor.

"It is proper enough in the night time, when there is no congestion, but for a candidate to hold a parade with 75 to 100 cars in the busy daytime down-town traffic is a piece of stupidity I did not think Nichols capable of.

"Joseph H. O'Neil promises when he is mayor to select the best engineering brains he can find for a solution of the down-town traffic

FLAPPER LOVE TALES DOCTOR'S DELIGHT

Stories of flapper love and other light and flippant tales of romance featuring young men and women were the great delight, during the last year of the life of Dr. J. Foster Bush, 71-year-old Arlington physician, it was testified in the hearing of his daughter's fight to break the aged physician's will in Essex Probate Court at Salem today.

"For hours at a time he would sit at the window completely engrossed in these stories, and if they pleased him particularly he would insist on reading them to me," testified Arthur Colby, Hartford, sanitarium attendant.

Attendant Colby told of the receipt by Dr. Bush at the sanitarium of scores of letters addressed to him from the "Island Court Hotel."

These missives were read, then torn into small pieces and thrown into waste baskets, Colby said.

Colby was testifying in the hearing of the petition of Mrs. Ella A. Von Zendeffy of New York, one of Dr. Bush's daughters, to break her father's will in which his younger daughter, Theoda, was left the larger portion of his $100,000 estate.

Colby described the doctor's correspondence while he was a patient at

HEALTH SCHOOL HEAD IS CAPTURED AFTER SHOOTING EMPLOYE

James Rayne, proprietor of a physical culture studio at No. 60 High street, patronized by Governor Fuller, Judge Brewster and other notables, today shot Fred W. Bowles, a 24-year-old employe.

The shooting occurred in the studio, known as the James Rayne Physical Culture System, and according to employes resulted from an argument over money after Bowles had resigned.

With five bullet wounds in his body, Bowles was taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, and Rayne was arrested while attempting to escape through a window to the fire escape.

Ralph C. Wirth, a physical instructor, who was in the baths when the shots were fired, ran out and disarmed Rayne, narrowly escaping a wound when the weapon was discharged in the struggle.

Bowles, whose home is in Richmond, Va., and who rooms at No. 116 Winthrop street, Roxbury, had been employed only a short time at the studio, it is said.

The establishment is located on the fourth floor of the High street building, and is said to be patronized

WOMAN, 80, DIES IN FLAMES; SAVES CHILD, 7

Wareham, Oct. 28.—Rounding out a career of self-sacrifice, eighty-year-old Mrs. Fannie Green Bumpus today laid down her life that her favorite great-granddaughter, seven-year-old Harriet Maxim, might live.

Awakened by smoke from a burning store beneath the Maxim apartment in A Main street block, Mrs. Bumpus gave the alarm, and then hurried to the rescue of Harriet, who slept with her.

Enfeebled by age and infirmities, she lifted the sleeping child from bed in the smoke-filled room and placed her on the floor where she had a fighting chance for life in the clearing air.

When firemen arrived sometime later, Harriet was unconscious but alive, while nearby was the huddled body of her great-grandmother.

STOCK PRICES TAKE GOOD, SHARP RALLY

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Stock prices rallied sharply after an earlier period of heaviness in today's market. The early selling, which was most effective in the motors and steels, was inspired by a continuance of relatively stiff call money rates and commission house advices recommending a lightening of long accounts.

United Drug and Chrysler were up around 10 points.

The recovery was aided by a series of favorable dividend announcements, including the declaration of an extra dividend of $1 on American Tobacco A and B stocks, the annual rate of which was raised from $7 to $8; resumption of payments on Barnsdall A and B stocks; an increase in the Keivinator annual rate from $1.80 to $2, with an additional stock dividend of 1¼ per cent., and the announcement of a higher rate on American Stores.

TRIED TO LET $51 PASS ROME SAYS CAPT. DIEHL

Captain John H. Diehl of Everett, master of the City of Rome, declared today he ordered the steamer's course changed to starboard to allow the submarine S51 to pass on the night of September 25 when the navy boat was sunk with a loss of thirty-three lives.

Testifying before the court of inquiry at the navy yard, Captain Diehl said that immediately after he ordered the steamer's course changed a red light showed up. Then pulled the whistle cord and the crash occurred.

The master of the City of Rome also testified that one of the survivors told him there were "supposed to be three rookies on watch" on the submarine.

Captain Diehl testified that when he asked what was meant by "rookies," he was told "young student officers learning how to run a submarine."

The sea captain took the stand at the opening of the afternoon session, giving his address at No. 92 Linden street, Everett. He said he had a first-class pilot's license, had been following the sea since 1888 and had

BULGARS RENEW 'WAR' BY ATTACKING GREEKS

Athens, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—The Greeks were attacked by Bulgarian forces today near Ramna, it is officially stated.

Ramna is ten miles west of Demirhissar, near which the present Greco-Bulgarian trouble broke out, and about five miles south of the border, on Greek territory.

One dispatch said the attack occurred while the Greek troops were withdrawing from Bulgarian soil in compliance with orders of the League of Nations.

"It is believed the evacuation must have ceased," the dispatch adds.

It is understood that the Greek troops in the frontier territory will not be withdrawn for the time being.

Bulgar officials said Greeks shelled a number of villages early in the day.

LAY GIANT RUM PLOT TO R. R.'S

Washington, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—A nationwide investigation of the alleged transportation of millions of gallons of booze and liquor over the railroads may be launched by the Treasury as the result of disclosures of the 40,000,000 Chicago beer syndicate.

Officials today asserted the use of railroads for bootlegging purposes is an international problem and that the Chicago case is simply one feature of a far-reaching conspiracy. It is one of the biggest jobs the new prohibition unit has to meet, an official said.

Most of the beer and liquor smuggled into the United States from Canada is carried on freight cars, according to information obtained by Customs agents.

BITTER TILTS FEATURE MITCHELL TRIAL; THREE JUDGES QUIT

WAR HERO GENERAL FURIOUS AT 'IGNORANCE' CHARGE

del against the competence of three members of the court.

The first challenge was directed against Brigadier-General Albert C. Bowley, commanding officer of Fort Bragg, N. C., and was based on a statement "that he is prejudiced, hostile and filled with animosity to the accused."

SPEECH IS BLAMED.

A speech made by General Bowley at Greenville, N. C., on Nov. 29 was cited in support of the charge.

In his speech General Bowley opposed the separate air department by Colonel Mitchell. After Representative Reid of Illinois, attorney for the colonel, had read a newspaper account of the speech, General Bowley said that the account was "approximately correct," but declared that he was not prejudiced or hostile to Colonel Mitchell.

The court after a seven-minute discussion sustained the challenge and General Bowley was excused.

A challenge then was lodged by the defense against Major-General Charles P. Summerall, head of the court, o nthe ground that he was prejudiced, hostile and bore animosity toward Colonel Mitchell.

Both challenges for cause were based on utterances of the two generals against the separate air department favored by Colonel Mitchell and in support of which he used language which led to his court-martial on a charge of violating good discipline.

BITTER CLASH ENSUES.

A sharp verbal clash between General Summerall and Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, counsel for Mitchell, preceded Representative Reid's request that the court excuse him from further attendance.

In support of his challenge, Mr. Reid read statements made by General Summerall before the President's air board, and coupled with them extracts from the report of Colonel Mitchell after he inspected the air defenses of the Hawaiian department, at that time commanded by General Summerall.

"I have learned for the first time," General Summerall said, "of the enmity Colonel Mitchell has toward me. The report he made is untrue, unfair and ignorant. This is not the place to probe the efficiency of the air service of the Hawaiian department.

"I cannot sit as a member of this court. I beg the court to excuse me from further attendance."

The court granted the request after a short consultation.

General Summerall's retirement placed Major-General Robert L. Howze, commanding officer of the Fifth Corps Area, at Columbus, O., in the president's chair.

A peremptory challenge then was made by Mr. Reid against Major-General Fred W. Sladen, superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, N. Y. This form of challenge permitted of no argument, and General Sladen was excused.

Only one peremptory is permitted under the practice of courts-martial, but any number may be challenged for cause, as were Generals Summerall and Bowley. It is not required that the defendant state the reasons for a peremptory challenge.

Vacancies by the challenges are not filled in army courts, the remaining members retaining full authority to act. With the challenges disposed of, therefore, the court was sworn, with its original membership of thirteen reduced to ten.

The scene outside the building as the court assembled was much like that which usually precedes an important social event in the national capital. Smartly equipped limousines rolled to the entrance and liveried footmen assisted the occupants to the curb.

"HOW" IS BARRED.

But there they halted, for a military guard was stationed at the door working on orders to admit none before the hour of convening except members of the court and accredited representatives of the press.

The waiting spectators included many of Washington's social leaders. They formed in line to be admitted in order of their arrival to the court room. Less than one hundred seats, ordinary folding chairs of the hard-bottom variety, had been arranged in six rows across the rear end of the court room.

Colonel Mitchell was greeted with cheers when he arrived. He was accompanied by Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Arthur Young, his sister, and his father-in-law, Sidney T. Miller of Detroit. The applause outside was in strong contrast to the grim silence that prevailed in the court.

The Colonel appeared in uniform, smiling. He wore all of his four rows of ribbons, denoting military decorations awarded by the United States and many foreign governments.

When the court had filed into the room, Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate, read the court-martial order issued by the War Department, followed by the official list of names of court members.

The court maintained silence—indicating negative responses—when Colonel Moreland asked if any of its number had declared enmity against the accused, had participated in the case in any way, or would be interested personally in the result.

CHARGES INEFFICIENCY.

Colonel Mitchell's Hawaiian report, which was read to the court as a part of the challenge against General Summerall, was dated December, 1923, and declared the air forces of the Islands were badly organized and that General Summerall had shown an ignorance of the principles involved.

In an appended statement by Colonel Mitchell, also read in court, he said the report had indicated that General Summerall "knew practically nothing about aviation." A copy of the report, Colonel Mitchell said, had been handed by him to General Summerall.

The case in behalf of Colonel Mitchell was opened by Mr. Reid with the reading of the statements the air officer made in San Antonio September 5 and 8, charging "criminal neglect," "incompetence" and "almost treasonable" administration of the air service. It is upon this language that Mitchell is being tried on charges of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

TAKES MEDICINE STANDING.

These statements, Mr. Reid declared, did not constitute a violation of any article of war.

With Colonel Mitchell standing before the bench, Lieut. Col. Joseph I. McMullen, assistant trial judge advocate, then read the specifications against him.

General Howze interrupted Colonel McMullen to say that he and the accused might be seated.

"If the court has no objection," Colonel McMullen said, "I would prefer to stand. I have no objection to the accused taking his seat."

Colonel Mitchell looked around, smiling.

"If the trial officer stands," he said, "I'll stand."

During the long process of reading the specifications and the statements on which they were based friends of Colonel Mitchell explained privately that the challenge against General Sladen was made on the ground that the General, as commandant of the Military Academy, was compelled to advocate and teach the most rigireus army disciplinary rules, and that his position would make it impossible for him to condone on the part of any army officer the statements Colonel Mitchell made in San Antonio.

With the reading of the specifications and statements still incomplete, the court adjourned with an hour's reading remaining for the afternoon session.

been master of the City of Rome since July 30, 1924.

"On the night of Sept. 25," said the witness, "we were Boston-bound with a competent crew, and no defects in vessel or equipment."

Asked by Judge Advocate Lockwood to confine himself to what he did after 8 p. m., Captain Diehl said:

TELLS OF CRASH.

"At 8:04, I went to my room, remaining there until 10:04, when I entered the pilot house. I looked out the starboard window and saw a white light. The third officer, who had the wheel, said he thought it was a tow when I asked him what kind of a light it was. As my eyes became accustomed to the darkness I saw the light was growing brighter. I picked up the glasses to look at it, and then walked to the port side.

"Returning, I looked again and said to the third officer: 'It's getting brighter. Bear to starboard a little to give her room to get by.'

"Suddenly a red light flashed immediately at hand, and I ordered the wheel hard aport. I grabbed the engine room telegraph and the whistle together. My hand slipped on the whistle cord, but a moment later several short blasts were blown. Then came the crash."

Capt. Diehl said the engines were ordered reversed about thirty seconds before the collision.

He then read from the ship's log the entries which he had made, dealing with events up to the time the survivors were brought aboard and the journey resumed at 11:46 p. m.

NOTIFIED NEW LONDON.

This log showed an entry to the effect that at 12:10 Captain Diehl wirelessed to the commandant of the submarine base at New London the first report to naval authorities of the sinking. This message was received at 2:24 a. m.

Captain Diehl said he thought he had observed all the laws of the sea, and did not leave the scene until he was convinced he could do no more good by remaining.

He denied having said that "he didn't give a damn for the ship, but was sorry for the boys."

Captain Diehl testified that Dewey Kile, one of the survivors, told him there was no chance of any men coming up alive. He said he did not inquire whether their might be any men alive below.

A white light on the S51 was seen by Lookout William A. Adamson for twenty minutes before the disaster he testified.

Adamson, who testified he went on lookout duty at 10 o'clock, said he saw the light a few minutes later, apparently five miles away.

The witness said he thought the light was on a coast guard boat because of its nearness to the water, but admitted he did not report it.

Just before the crash a red light appeared, Adamson said, and added he thought it had been switched on.

The witness said he saw the submarine go down, estimating it took twenty seconds. He then helped man a lifeboat and himself drew Michael Lira, one of the survivors, from the water.

Ousted Judge in Bitter War on Mitchell

Washington, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—Because he was challenged and excused as president of the court-martial trying Colonel "Billy" Mitchell, Brigadier-General Charles P. Summerall today returned to the War Department and openly declared "war" on the "stormy petrel" of the army air service.

"From now on Mitchell and I are enemies," said Summerall. "It cannot be otherwise after what he did at the court-martial."

MURDER, in all branches, is developed to unpleasant perfection. Mr. Brown, farmer, called on a young lady. Her employer objected, Brown killed the employer and mother, shot the young lady in the abdomen and a little later shot and killed himself. His farewell note said: "This would never have happened if conditions had been different at home."

JOHN F. MACKING, JR., aged 24, who lives in New York, shot his young wife—also in the abdomen—as she entered the breakfast room. He killed himself, later. A farewell note to his father-in-law said: "By the time you will read this letter dad I'll b[illegible] mamma and nanna. I [illegible] them everything is [illegible] his wife will probably die."

He will recover.

IT IS A crime wave of considerable height. Some blame it on the war, some on prohibition. England, where there is no prohibition, has today less crime than before the war.

Bootlegging, lawbreaking by "respectable" people, not by a few, but by millions, seems to call for attention.

FREIGHT EMBARGOES, on all but perishable goods and livestock, prevail in Florida. The congestion, unheard of, would have been infinitely worse but for the foresight and daring of S. Davies Warfield, of the Seaboard Air Line. Mr Warfield, ahead of all others, saw what was coming and in record time built his new road across Florida, building and extending other lines on the East and West coasts. Luckily for Florida he is still building.

MR. HUGHES, former Secretary of State, warns the country that it is not providing the railroads it needs. There will be $20,000,000 of us in 50 years, according to Mr. Hughes, and the nation should get ready.

The warning is needed, although the flying machine will solve a great part of the problem, in less than 50 years. The country needs half a dozen more such men as Mr. Warfield, that really build while others talk.

DR. E. A. JENKINS of Kansas City advises clergymen to imitate the Hebrew prophets and P. T. Barnum and advertise. The ancients certainly knew how to attract attention, Daniel in the lions' den, Elijah with his chariot of fire and trained ravens, the pious, incombustible three in the fiery furnace, etc. You could not ignore them.

DR. JENKINS tells clergymen to select snappier titles for their sermons, imitating newspaper headline writers.

It is not easy, however, to be snappy and reverent, at the same time. The Salvation Army does it, Talmadge, Beecher and Spurgeon did it. It is not easy.

Customs agents will be detailed to operate on freight trains, not only along the eastern Canadian border, but in the neighborhood of Detroit, Duluth, Minneapolis and Western points, it was understood.

Members of the crews will be held responsible for the presence of liquor in freight cars.

One official said: "Evidently with such a quantity of liquor moving on the railroads some officials of the roads must have knowledge of this violation of the law."

An effort will be made to establish the connection between the operation of some influential members of the "bootleg trust" whose names are known to prohibition authorities and railroad officials be[illegible] lieved to be in league with the [illegible] quor merchants.

The co-operation of high rail executives has been asked by the Treasury.

Officials expressed the belief that the corporations will assist in weeding out of the rail service the subordinates believed to be guilty of connivance with bootleggers.

WOMAN LEADS IN AUTO THIEF CHASE

His Mother Even Let Wife Wear Her Rings

TWO fair delegates to Mail Advertising Service Association Convention being held here. At top, Miss Gladys Gillian; below, Miss L. E. Hansen. Delegates come from all parts of the U. S.

CLOTHING ALSO WAS LENT HER

Picturing in roseate terms the existence of his wife since her marriage day—describing happy theatre and card parties where joy reigned unconfined, characterizing as ridiculous all claims that his spouse has been cruelly and abusively treated, Frank R. Milliken, Malden shoe-man, testified today in Middlesex Probate Court against the separate support petition of his wife, Alice Gould Milliken.

"I never struck or abused my wife in my life, and her life in my mother's home was a contented one until last March," Milliken testified.

"I have taken great pains to keep Mrs. Milliken happy," he added.

"Mrs. Milliken and I were one of four young married couples who took the most there was in the innocent enjoyment of life," the husband testified.

Weekly card parties and Mah Jong tournaments, with frequent visits to Boston theatres were enjoyed, according to Milliken. The husband testified on these occasions his wife wore his mother's three valuable diamond rings and clothing of the best material and cut.

"Why, the coat she wore in this courtroom yesterday was my mother's—she asked for it and my mother gave it to her," Milliken said.

The husband testified to taking his wife on vacation trips to northern New England points during their married life.

Under cross-examination, however, he admitted that his mother defrayed most of the expenses of these trips.

Milliken stated his salary averaged $20 a week during his employment with a Boston shoe company. He stated his wife knew what his salary was and she realized Mrs. Milliken, Sr., was doing her utmost to make life pleasant for her son, his wife and their children in her Malden home.

U. S. Becoming Monkey House, Says Canon

LONDON, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Rev. William Hartley Carnegie, canon of Westminster, who has just returned from the United States, is quoted in an interview given the Evening News as saying that "the canker in the life of America is divorce," and as declaring "with all seriousness that America is degenerating from a human society into a monkey house."

"It may well mean the end of their civilization," Canon Carnegie added.

Divorce, he asserted, "is rotting away the heart of that great country. The modern American couple often gets married with the idea of divorcing each other within a fortnight.

"The laws of America help them to do it. They can get a divorce for anything. Hundreds of excuses are ready to their hand; incompatibility of temperament, the man's fondness for baseball, the way the woman wears her hair—anything will serve."

HUB MAN APPEALS JAIL TERM IN PISTOL CASE

Attleboro, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Antonio Sorvino, giving his address as Boston, was given a six months' sentence in district court today because he had no permit for revolver found on him when police halted an automobile in which he was riding. He appealed.

2 IN STOLEN CAR FLEE INFURIATED WOMAN

Leading the police in a wild race through North Cambridge, Mrs. Edith Taylor of No. 32 Dearborn road, Somerville, nearly effected the capture of two automobile thieves who stole her automobile and who came to grief during the thrilling chase when the stolen car crashed into a tree in Milton street.

The men escaped before the police car, hurriedly summoned by Mrs. Taylor when she saw her automobile being driven through Massachusetts avenue, reached the scene.

CRASHES INTO TREE.

Mrs. Taylor appeared at the North Cambridge Police Station and reported the theft of her car to the authorities. As she was leaving the station house she noticed her machine coming up Massachusetts avenue.

With a shout she told the police of the circumstances and without waiting for assistance jumped into another automobile, owned by a friend, and started in pursuit of the thieves.

The chase led for some distance through Massachusetts avenue and the thieves then swung the stolen car into Milton street. The car was travelling at a high rate of speed and in making the corner it struck a tree, throwing the thieves out and overturning.

GET DESCRIPTION.

Mrs. Taylor was only a short distance behind. Bringing her car to a stop she started after the men on foot but they outdistanced her and had disappeared before the police arrived to aid her.

Mrs. Taylor was able to give the police a description of the two men which the authorities believe will result in their arrests and will assist materially in breaking up what is believed to be a gang of automobile thieves operating in this city.

MABEL GERRY OF R. I. IS MARRIED TO BRITON

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Miss Mabel Gerry, daughter of Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry of Newport and New York, was married today to Francis Saxham Elwes Drury of London with simple services in Trinity Chapel. Mr. Drury is a member of an English family that traces its ancestry to the days of William the Conqueror, while the bride's great grandfather, Elbridge Gerry, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Bishop William T. Manning pronounced the benediction. Mr. Drury's son, Vyvyan Drury, was best man. Commodore Gerry, because of advanced age, did not attend.

22 MORE IRON WORKERS ON JOB TODAY

John F. Walsh, secretary of the Building Trades' Employers' Association, announced today that employers were making progress in spite of the strike of iron workers. He said the association had 160 men employed on jobs throughout Greater Boston and had added 22 new hands today.

These men, he explained, are being paid the standard wage of $1.10 per hour. He said work was being conducted satisfactorily.

5TH FIGURE IN TRIPLE SLAYING IS HINTED

Sturbridge, Oct. 28.—A sinister fifth figure entered today into the tragedy that sent two men and a woman to death and put 18-year-old Jessie Tiffany, heroine of the shambles, on a hospital cot to battle for life.

Today her fight was crowned with victory, for she was pronounced out of danger, following the removal of bullets.

But with her mother, Mrs. Mary Tiffany, Eugene Holden and John Brown, the slayer and suicide, all in their graves, Mrs. Adela Brown, widow of the slayer, declared today that there must have been a fifth actor in the tragedy—a fifth actor that took part in the slaying.

She based her assertion on the fact that Holden, a bigger and more powerful man than Brown, bore bruises as if from a beating on his body, while no such marks were on that of her husband.

Also did she cite that the woodshed floor, in the Brown homestead, is stained with blood, although there is no trail of blood from the place where Brown shot himself to the woodshed.

There is a blood trail, she said, from the kitchen, where he fired the suicidal shots, to the living room into which he staggered to die.

Police scoff at the theory of a fifth actor in the tragedies, but Mrs. Brown today was insistent that the entire affair be investigated. She did not absolve her husband, but she asserted that she wished to know all the facts.

A hint of another hand was contained in the note left by Brown. In the note he said he was not wholly to blame for the affair and there is a belief that he might have referred to another person, as yet unnamed.

MOTORCYCLE COPS ESCORT GLYNN ON CAMPAIGN TOUR OF CITY

WOMEN IN NICHOLS PARADE

problem and he can be depended upon to do so."

Former Senator Thomas Donovan of the South End, campaign manager for Sheriff John A. Kelliher, issued a statement branding as incorrect the reported readiness of Kelliher to withdraw from the contest in favor of Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn.

Donovan specifically refers to the publication of the report in the press. He said:

"Indications of a Kelliher victory are too strong in spite of the contemptible effort of what was to Kelliher in favor of anybody.

RALLYING TO KELLIHER.

"None of the candidates for the office possess the personality and the experience of John A. Kelliher. More and more of the people are coming to this opinion each day. Thinking people are rallying to his support and we are confident he will be returned a victor November 3d."

The name of the Hub will be changed to "Innesville" or "Innesburg" if Malcolm E. Nichols is elected Mayor it was declared at a noon rally in Pemberton square by Candidate William T. A. Fitzgerald.

"Hand-picked, obedient servant of the Republican city machine," was the characterization of the leading Republican candidate by Fitzgerald.

"He would be unable as Mayor, to give the people a fair deal," declared Fitzgerald.

"The citizens of Boston do not want a man who is merely the servant of a boss or of some political clique.

"The citizens do not expect a Mayor to be a superman, but they do want a Mayor who has sufficient intelligence, character, common honesty and common sense to administer the affairs of the city in accordance with the letter and spirit of the city charter.

"I believe the affairs of the city should be administered with true economy, consistent with good service, and with the payment of fair salaries and wages to its employes.

"My election would cause no upheaval on political or personal grounds in any of the city departments, and every employe will get a square deal from me.

"I pledge myself, if elected, to establish a system of open competition for public work, that the work will be awarded in all cases to the lowest responsible bidder, and with no outside considerations. This will assure fair play to the contractor, as well as to the city.

"Boston is many miles nearer to Europe than any large port on the Atlantic coast. I believe we should utilize this great industrial advantage by making the strongest possible fight to bring new business to the city by railroad from all parts of the country for transhipment by water to European ports.

FAVORS LOWER TAX RATE.

"I believe the interests of the home-owner and the rent payer are paramount. I have been a champion of the home owner's cause. To the home-owner and rent payer the problem of taxation is greatest. I believe Boston should have the lowest tax rate consistent with the welfare and improvement of our city.

"I believe that my knowledge of the conditions and needs of my native city, and my experience as a lawyer, councilman, legislator and public official will qualify me to grasp and solve the many problems for the welfare and safety of the people that will confront the next Mayor of Boston."

While the other candidates were making their rounds without benefit of policemen, Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn whirled about the city accompanied by two roaring motorcycles.

On every tour the motorcycle officers go before and behind the Glynn entourage clearing the way and aiding Mayor Curley's candidate to make the maximum number of speaking points.

The automobile parade, staged by women supporters of Nichols was the high point for the day in the latter's fight.

Starting from Dartmouth and Marlboro streets at 10 a. m. with Nichols' sisters and his three children in the lead car, the parade went through Jamaica Plain, Roxbury, Dorchester, South Boston, through the city and out through [illegible] returning back to the Boston Opera House, where it disbanded.

Specimen of ballot to be used at city election next Tuesday. There are ten candidates listed for Mayor, with Alonzo B. Cook's name leading the list. The ballots have been printed and will soon be displayed about town for guidance of the voters.

Down town the procession was easily broken up, however, when traffic necessitated holding up part of the sixty cars while the first section was allowed through the block.

From out the Daniel H. Coakley camp today came news that Daniel J. Gallagher, an assistant prosecutor under former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, has taken the stump for "Pan."

Coakley today again refuted the rumors that he is not in the fight to win.

"As I said the other day," declared Coakley, "such rumors are nothing more than humorless jokes."

UNTIL the eve of the election of Mayor, the Boston Evening American will place at the disposal of the various candidates space in which to discuss the issues of the campaign.

In the publication of this material, the Boston Evening American assumes no responsibility for either the ideas or utterances of the candidates, but presents them entirely as the views of the men under whose signatures they appear.

Making No Rash Election Promises—Fitzgerald

By WM. T. A. FITZGERALD.

Public office should not be used for private gain.

I have always believed that the duty of a public official is to give service to the public first, last and always. I do not believe in making rash promises which, at election time, are being lavished upon the voters. Nothing would please me more than to have the voters examine what W. T. A. Fitzgerald public records of the men who are seeking their suffrage and learn for themselves whether the men who are shoveling out promises are sincere in their talk, and if their actions in the past recommend them as men of their word.

Everywhere throughout Boston, from street corner and platform candidates are promising, promising. According to the accounts in newspapers, in reporting speeches made by various candidates, Boston, after election day, is to become a wonder city, an earthly paradise as though created by a trick of magic.

NO RASH PROMISES.

I have not joined the ranks of those making rash campaign promises. I am content to rest upon my past record in public office and my past deeds.

Better educational accommodations, sufficient hospital accommodations for the relief of those afflicted with tuberculosis and the dread contagious diseases, simplified methods of transferring real estate, short and convenient forms of co-operative bank mortgages, less burdensome taxation, and a cherished ambition to assist the man of moderate means to own his own home—those have been the motives actuating my public service—and those are the motives which actuate me in seeking the office of mayor of my native city.

BETTER SERVICE.

I believe that every section of the city, not alone Boston proper, is entitled to better streets; to better collections of ashes.

I believe that East Boston should have either the accommodation of a bridge to the city or some sort of vehicular tunnel. I am not an expert on this. It is up to experts and the people of East Boston to say which they desire and which would best suit their needs.

I do not promise that as mayor a bridge will be erected beginning the day after I take office, to connect East Boston, or that 5,000 men will at once start work digging a new vehicular tunnel.

I can promise, without fear that I am making an unreasonable election promise to inveigle anyone into voting for me, that as mayor I will give whole-hearted support to obtaining improvements that the city requires, always keeping in mind, however, the taxation burden that falls on the shoulders of the home-owner and the rent payer.

FAVOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Boston must become bigger and greater, of course. As a native son, interested in her welfare and progress, I should be the last person to stand in the way of any improvement which would tend toward the growth of the city. I wish to see her docks busier; I am determined that as mayor I shall indicate that the harbor be better buoyed so that steamship captains would not hesitate to bring their vessels here. I want to see her terminals busier, the great industrial plants working at top speed and all business booming.

I do not want to see the home-owner driven from the home he has slaved to enjoy by outrageous taxes. I do not want to see the rent-payer forced from his comfortable flat into a different, poorer neighborhood because of similarly outrageous rent boosts, which would follow in the wake of heavy taxation.

Boston, I believe, needs a courageous, sensible, honest Mayor to conduct the gigantic business of the city in the next four years and to safeguard the man in his own home. This is by far the biggest issue in this campaign.

Good Fellows in Office Costly, Says McGauley

By WALTER G. McGAULEY

W. G. McGauley

So the people of Boston intend to elect as mayor some professional politician who has spent his life at the public till, and who cannot make a living if he is separated from the public payroll?

Are the people ready to admit that there are two classes in the city; a class of office holders who were born to live without working, whose only qualifications are falsetto voices and shirt fronts, and who from the day they attain voting age until the day they die look to the State, city or county treasury for bed and board?

If you owned a factory would you hire as a superintendent an inexperienced individual whose only past occupation had been that of a ballyhoo man at a side show and who had failed consistently to make good in business or the professions?

If you were foolish enough to employ such an applicant, would you have the right to complain if costs increased, debts accumulated and profits vanished?

When you hire a professional politician, one of these election time "good fellows," you are placing a dangerous man in office. You cannot complain if taxes increase, if your institutions are mismanaged, and if the city steadily slides back into the morasty of machine politics.

I challenge the other candidates for the mayoralty to make their records public.

I challenge them to tell the people what they have accomplished outside public office.

I challenge them to make their earnings public.

I challenge them to admit how much of their earnings since they were 21 have been secured by actual labor in business or profession and how much has been secured by holding down some public office.

You should learn the qualifications of the men who ask you to hire them.

You demand that a candidate for the position of janitor of City Hall take a civil service examination; you demand that the elevator man at City Hall file an expert statement of his experience, then—

Why not demand that the man who asks to be hired prove their fitness?

My record as a professional man and as a business man will stand inspection. What other candidate dares tell his story?

SAMPLE VOTES WILL GUIDE ELECTORATE

Specimen ballots for next Tuesday's city election, which bids fair to prove the most memorable scramble for office in the history of the city, have been printed and will soon be placed on display throughout the city for the guidance of the voters.

Exactly ten names appear on the list of candidates for the four-year mayoralty term. They are not printed alphabetically, but according to the drawings conducted by the Board of Election Commissioners. The name of Alonzo B. Cook heads the list, with that of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien appearing in last place.

The list of mayoralty candidates is printed in the upper left hand corner of the ballot with that of local ward candidates for the new city council, one from each ward to be elected, just below in the lower left hand corner.

The voter will be allowed to place his "X" opposite only one name in the list of council candidates from his ward.

In the upper right hand corner of the ballot is the long list of school committee candidates. Here are sixteen names with five places to fill. The name of George E. McDermott was drawn for first place and that of Francis C. Gray of Marlborough street for last.

The voter will place his "X" opposite five of the sixteen names.

NO INDORSEMENTS, SAYS CENTRAL IRISH COUNCIL

The Central Council of Irish County Association, in a statement denies a report being circulated that the organization had indorsed certain candidates in the Mayoralty contest. The statement was signed by Katherine C. Keohane, John J. Foley, Frank M. Tiernan, John Lanigan and Seth Finnegan.

He's Apostle of Home Rule Says Theodore A. Glynn

By THEODORE A. GLYNN.

Theodore A. Glynn

The leopard cannot change his spots. Nor can Malcolm E. Nichols blot from the mind of the voters the truth that he is the handmaiden of the Charles Innes Republican machine.

Wherever he goes and whatever he does, Mal Nichols is trailed by the shadow of the Innes machine and emblazoned on his escutcheon in flaming letters is the word, "Innes." Should he be elected this all means reaction and stagnation in the city and a reckless disregard of the rights of the people, in favor of those of the big interests that have always hired and been willing to pay for the work and influence of the most cold-blooded and deliberate paid lobbyist Massachusetts has ever known.

Can Boston afford to be plastered over with Innes machine tactics and Innes machine policies? Can anyone say with truth that Malcolm E. Nichols could be anything else but partisan and reactionary when he is the thumbnail sketch of the most violent and virulent of partisans in politics.

The election of Malcolm E. Nichols is but to push Boston deeper into the mire of Republican tyranny and under the heel of State legislative domination.

Right is built upon the foundation of justice and the rights of Boston citizens ought to be upon the same foundation.

Boston will sell itself into slavery of the worst kind if it is blinded by the blandishments and cajolery of an astute machine into voting Malcolm E. Nichols into the office easter. James J. Hughes and Jo- of Mayor.

Boston is on the road to such greatness as to dazzle the most optimistic. The city has had a good start in the past four years and we want to continue the pace. The Republicans are in panic, and every day brings a new admission that what I have been contending for, the battle which I have been fighting for the people of Boston is the right one. That is the battle for absolute Home Rule. See how quickly Senator Draper and Representative Shattuck have rushed into print with the news that a bill has been drafted to get Home Rule for Boston. They see the hand writing on the wall. The people of Boston are aroused.

Boston is going to remain a government of the people; a government of progress and advancement, efficiency, economy and wisdom and all the schemings of the angels of darkness will not prevail or prevent.

SCHOOL EXPENDITURE IMPORTANT ITEM

"A business man for a business job."

This plain, straight-forward slogan of James D. Casey, candidate for election to the School Committee, is attracting the attention of thousands of Boston voters because of the age-old arguments which it meets, to wit: That none but lawyers or doctors can administer the affairs of a large city school department.

"The wise counsel of a lawyer is needed in the smooth functioning of a school board," Candidate Casey says.

Candidate Casey said today:

"I am assured of election to the school committee. The voters, the parents, the tax-payers, the common folks, even the politicians—yes—even the doctors and lawyers are flocking to my support.

They realize that with the huge sum of $17,684,567.89 appropriated for the school department it is to the common interest that a sound business man of good reputation be named to have a hand in disbursing this great sum.

WEDS AND LOSES BRIDE, 17, IN 12 DAYS

"Millionaire Reporter" Has Startling Romance Out in California

Los Angeles, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—Theodore Joseph Mayer, 25-year-old "millionaire reporter," grandson of Rear Admiral Wilson, U. S. N., of Newport, R. I., had fled from Los Angeles after a startling twelve-days' romance, police and county records revealed here today.

An elopement, filing of an insanity complaint and the loss of his bride of 17 in less than two weeks' time were the high lights in the love life of the rich New Yorker.

Official county records told the story of Mayer's shattered romance.

Priest Invents New Ghost Laying Device

Father De Heredia Has Instrument That Will Measure "Subconscious Personalities"

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—An instrument for measuring subconscious personality has been developed by Father C. M. De Heredia, Mexican Jesuit priest, who has been active as an exposer of spirit mediums and duplicator of their tricks.

The machine, called a microvibroscope and said by Father De Heredia to be an adaptation of the Russian omith board, was exhibited at St. Francis Xavier's College. Father De Heredia says two physicians are testing it for its possible powers of diagnosis. It consists of a brass pendulum hanging by a silk thread from a joint in a brass disk.

FR. C. M. De HEREDIA

When a subject places his fingers on the brass disk the pendulum describes geometrical designs, differing for each subject.

Father De Heredia says he has not yet been able to reduce the loops and curves to any accurately readable formula, but that the pendulum is definitely responsive to symptoms of certain diseases and that two physicians are comparing its reactions to determine its constancy with a view to possible use as an aid in diagnoses.

Persons who are psychically endowed, according to Father De Heredia, cause the pendulum to swing four times as fast as an ordinary person. He says he does not deny psychic phenomena, but doubts the presence of spirits cause any "manifestations."

He believes they are caused by the subconscious intelligence of mediums. He thinks that the microvibroscope may be used to measure this subconscious intelligence.

HOLDUPS TAKE $100 FROM ROXBURY MAN

Bernard L. McCabe, of No. 270 Eustis street, Roxbury, reported to the police of the Fields Corner station that he had been held up by two men on Glendale street, Dorchester, about $30 o'clock. He told Special Officer Frank Maguire that the two men had guns, and took between $80 and $100 from him. This was mostly money he had gathered on his collection route for the Prudential Insurance Company.

THEODORA PRESSER, 78, DIES IN PHILADELPHIA

Mr. Presser was head of Theodore Presser & Co., music publishing house, and founder of Etude, a musical publication.

WOMAN, 80, DIES SAVING GIRL, 7, IN FLAMES

five children by means of a ladder, after leaping from a second story window.

The grief-stricken family, already in reduced circumstances and benumbed by the death of Mrs. Green, was left homeless by the fire.

Huddled in the street, a pitiable group, they were taken in charge by town officials, who started a popular subscription to care for them, and provide funds for the burial of the aged heroine.

The Maxims, with Mrs. Green, lived in lodgings in a Main street block, the first floor of which was devoted to stores and shops.

JEANNETTE HER FAVORITE.

In one of these, a vulcanizing shop of which W. C. Savery is proprietor, the fire started, it is believed, from a blow torch left burning.

Mrs. Green slept in a room off the kitchen of the Maxims apartment with little Jeannette, the oldest of the five children, and her especial favorite.

To the great grand-mother Jeannette was the brightest, smartest, most beautiful child in her small world. She almost idolized the little girl, and was always doing something for her.

GIVES WARNING FIRST.

When the thick, acrid smoke permeated the building, the aged woman was the first to be awakened by it, and her thoughts flew to Jeannette.

Her affection for the little girl did not cause her to forget the others, whom she realized must be warned.

As Mrs. Green got out of bed the smoke clouds were growing thicker, and they had some difficulty in making her way to the room of her granddaughter, Mrs. Maxim.

She reached her goal, and awakening Mrs. Maxim, started back as fast as her aged feet and purblind senses would carry her to the rescue of Jeannette.

The room was filled with smoke by the time she reached it, and Mrs. Green uttered a strangled cry as she made her way to the bed. Fearing the worst, she fumbled about until her hands touched the childish form, and the stertorous breathing of Jeannette reassured her.

USES LAST STRENGTH.

Then came the final test. Her strength almost gone, Mrs. Green realized she could not carry the now unconscious little girl to safety.

There was but one course, and she took it. With a tremendous effort she lifted Jeannette from the bed and placed her on the floor, where a fitful air current flickered against her bare feet.

The act signed her own death warrant, for the weakened woman, already overcome by smoke, was unable to save herself. With a little smile on her lips in the belief that Jeannette was safe, she collapsed and died.

DOCTORS REVIVE GIRL.

When Firemen George Tripp and his brother Stephen groped their way into the smoke-filled room, they stumbled over the lifeless form of Mrs. Green. Nearby, still breathing the life-giving draughts of air on the floor, was little Jeannette.

Physicians worked over both for hours and were rewarded when the child came to. The great-grandmother, the little smile fixed in death, had gone on her last journey.

WIFE OF MISSING EVERETT MAN DIES

Mrs. Octavus Caru, wife of Quinetto Caru, well known Everett man who disappeared a week ago, died at her home, No. 34 Dean street, Everett, today, after a brief illness.

Members of the family have asked the Boston Evening American to aid in the search for Mr. Caru, who left home to seek employment.

Mrs. Caru was 44 years of age. She leaves one son and a daughter besides her husband. The family formerly lived in the Orient Heights district of East Boston.

CONGREGATIONALISTS FOR TEACHING OF SCIENCE

Washington, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The National Council of Congregational Churches went on record eher today as believing there can be no conflict between science and religion and deploring "any attempt of the State or Federal Governments to interfere with the teaching of widely accepted scientific theories."

A unanimous vote of approval followed reading of the resolution which set forth the views of the churches, and prolonged applause greeted its adoption.

Charges Auto Theft

Oliver Burns, seventeen, of No. 89 Sterling street, Roxbury, driving through Newton in a stolen automobile, came to grief when a patrolman recognized the registration number of the machine. Burns was arrested, charged with unlawful appropriation of an automobile. He is alleged to have taken it from the Lansing Street Garage, Roxbury without the permission of the owner Arthur Wholly, of No. 35 Maywood street, Roxbury.

FLORIDA

THE WHOLE WORLD is looking toward Florida. Since Flagler, keen of foresight, built his railway down the east coast and opened his Palm Beach hotels—25 to 30 years ago—Florida has moved steadily toward the front, netting fortunes for its backers. Gradually knowledge of its beautiful climate, both summer and winter, and the surpassing fertility of its soil has found its way to the public mind. Ever-increasing numbers have, during these years, headed toward Florida for homes and farms, and land values have steadily mounted, until the migration has become a veritable stampede.

Such innumerable fortunes have been made from small investments that they have become headline news of great moment. Florida is booming, but THERE IS NO BOOM in the sense generally meant by the word "boom." It is merely experiencing a belated recognition of values.

Land where the annual growing season lasts twelve months; where it continues when other climes are snow and ice-bound; where rainfall is as constant as irrigation and where the sun shines 360 days out of 365, must be valuable.

Building lots in modern cities enjoying these marvelous climatic conditions are just as sure to acquire congestion-value as the sun is to shine. But these values will be soundly based upon the foundation of merit and the consequent influx of population.

Germany fought for "a place in the sun." The wise man of America will "buy a place under Florida's unfailing sun" while it is yet within his purse.

St Johns Manor

is such an opportunity, where every ideal of a winter or an all-the-year-round home is to be had and where every condition to cause location-value to grow, is a contributor.

You cannot afford to miss one line of the following information

St. Johns Manor lies on an extension of the main street of the thriving manufacturing city of Palatka. Palatka, served by three railroads, by ocean steamship lines, is the front door to St. Johns Manor. Palatka affords every modern city convenience and is the centre of a veritable hub of State and country motor roads. St. Johns Manor is high, well-drained pine land, traversed by State highways and one steam railroad. It also has a station already established within fifteen minutes' walk on the Atlantic Coast Line. It lies just above the banks of the beautiful St. Johns River, which is navigable for 100 miles above this point. It is in Putnam County and is a part of the Ridge and Lake district which constitutes Florida's water divide. This district today produces 90 per cent of Florida's agricultural crops. A splendid new golf course has just been completed only a short distance from the property, and nearby it also has the Wild Game and Bird Preserve of the United States Government.

St. Johns Manor is one of Nature's beauty spots, well selected for healthfulness, accessibility and attractiveness. It lies opposite a beautiful bend in the St. Johns River, which has at this point more of the aspect of a lake than of a river and where are to be found the Seven Sister Islands. There is everything at St. Johns Manor to justify higher prices than are now being placed upon the property. But they have been held down to the present extremely low figure for the benefit of the first hundred New England buyers. Those who would be of that number must act promptly. If possible, they should visit the offices of the company, but if that is not possible, request for plans and further information, including the well illustrated booklet now ready for distribution, should be made at once. Below will be found a coupon, for your convenience, which should be cut out and mailed.

Title to the property is guaranteed by the Florida Title & Guaranty Co., and all deeds are issued by the Miami Bank and Trust Co.

ASQUITH FINDS MUCH HUSTLE IN HUB

Doesn't Travel Abroad for Social Activity, You Know; London Americanized

Americanization of London and construction of towering business structures there, while viewed with grave interest, nevertheless is deplored by staid Londoners, who regret the passing of historical landmarks cherished in British history, the Hon. Anthony Asquith said in an interview granted the Boston Evening American today.

Young Asquith, son of the Right Honorable Earl of Oxford and Asquith, Great Britain's prime minister until 1916, is 22 years old, and a very reticent and unostentatious young man.

This is his first visit to the United States. Boston is his second stop on a trip to important cities in this country and he is spending a week here visiting an Oxford classmate, Sylvester Gates, now at Harvard.

TAKEN BY STORM.

Attired in a sporty suit of flannel pajamas, leisurely reclining in bed, Mr. Asquith in his suite at the Hotel Touraine said:

"Really, your American enterprises seems to have taken our fair Mayfair by storm. What with your cafeterias, night clubs, jazz, business structures—I mean to say we really are becoming quite American.

"This is my first trip to your country, don't you know. It is so different from London—I mean your hustle and bustle—that is, your running about hither and thither at accelerated speed.

"I am especially interested in Boston, you know. It is one of your eldest cities—what. But with all of its traditions and with all your highly developed improvements and ours, too, ancient Babylonian and Egyptian solons would not think much of us."

When asked his future plans, young Asquith stated it would be difficult to follow the footsteps of his illustrious father and therefore politics was not in question.

BENT FOR LITERATURE.

Serious mindedly he said his bent was for literature, architecture and motion picture production. He added that his visit here at this time was not of a social nature.

"There is plenty of social activity in London and therefore on does not go abroad for that," he stated. "I am not quite much of a dancer and I prefer a drawing-room or a few dancing rounds at a ball.

"I expect to visit your Hollywood and spend some time in the study of picturization of novels. I am intensely interested in motion picture direction. Really, I believe that this new industry has room for much development and I may go in for it."

GEORGE L. KEHEW LAID TO REST IN BEDFORD

Funeral services for George L. Kehew, more than fifty years a native on a Boston newspaper and who died Sunday in Somerville Hospital, from injuries received Oct. 13 when knocked down by an auto at Holland and Wallace streets, West Somerville, were held today at the chapel of A. E. Long & Sons, Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge. The Rev. David Fowler, pastor of West Somerville Congregational Church, officiated and burial was in Bedford.

Missing Sailor

Somerville police are searching for Lester E. Osborne of Eagle Boat No. 19, who has been missing from home since September 19.

The Somerville police have been requested to aid in the search for Lester E. Osborne, thirty years of age, until five weeks ago ship's keeper and clerk attached to Eagle Boat No. 19 at the Charlestown Navy Yard, who has been missing from his home, No. 3 Belmont place, Somerville, since September 19.

Osborne has three children, David, five years; Mariam, aged three years, and Frank Russell, sixteen months. The two older are crying and wondering what is keeping their "Daddy" on the Navy Boat and why he does not come home to see them.

Osborne is a Somerville boy, and served in the army on the Mexican border and in the World War and later joined the navy, serving as a chief yeoman. His wife, Mrs. Bertha Osborne, is at a loss to account for his disappearance.

AMERICANS TO QUIT DAMASCUS

Washington, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Americans in Damascus have been advised by the consulate there to take refuge in Beirut until the situation in Damascus is thoroughly cleared up.

The State Department, through the consulate at Beirut, is making every effort to care for American refugees.

Two American destroyers, ordered from Gibraltar, have arrived at Alexandria. So far no damage to American-owned property has been reported to Washington.

STINNES FLEES FROM QUARRELS TO NEW YORK

Berlin, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The departure from Germany of Dr. Edmund Stinnes, eldest son of the late Hugo Stinnes, industrial magnate, was kept secret, and news has only been received of his arrival in New York.

Tired of family quarrels and squabbles with bankers and receivers over the remnants of the family fortune, friends say, young Stinnes decided to seek a new business environment in America.

11 FACE COURT AFTER RAIDERS SEIZE DRUGS

Liquor, Revolvers and Other Goods Taken in Chinatown and South End

Eleven men including four Chinese faced municipal court judges today following a series of spectacular liquor and drug raids by plainclothes police officers of the headquarters liquor and narcotic squads in Chinatown, the South End and Roxbury.

Quantities of smoking opium, liquor of varying degrees of potency, revolvers and other goods were seized by the police raiders who operated in three groups under the general direction of Lieutenant Daniel J. Hines of Headquarters.

Sergeant "Bob" Caverley and Special Officer Frank Monohan led the raiders in a sortie on the premises at No. 10 Oxford place in the heart of Chinatown.

FOUR CHINESE SEIZED.

Here four Chinese were arrested and twenty-five grains of opium, a number of pipes "ren hoks," peanut oil lamps and other appurtenances of the opium smoker seized by the raiders.

The Chinese taken are, Harry Chin, twenty-eight; Chin Long, thirty-two; Wong Lee, forty-six and Chin Ling, fifty-six.

The same squad seized four men in front of a South End lodging house when the officers observed the quartette acting suspiciously. One of the men, Joseph Curley, fifty-one, of Union Park street was found to be carrying a loaded revolver according to the police. His three companions were held as suspicious persons in connection with the investigation of the recent wave of thefts from common carriers.

The liquor detachment operated in Roxbury and the South End.

TWO TAKEN IN TRUCK.

On Blue Hill avenue the officers held up a motor car from which they seized sixty-five gallons of "moonshine" which they say was no doubt being transported to Chelsea. They arrested two men found in the car. They are Sam Goldstein, twenty-two, of Cross street, Chelsea, and Sam Cohen, twenty-four, of John street, Chelsea.

Another squad visited a butcher shop at No. 18 Compton street. Here one gallon of "moonshine" and a razor was found "on ice." Max Ackman, who was arrested, told the police he kept the stuff for "singeing the hair off chickens."

O'HARE WANTS VOTE ON TEACHERS' RESIDENCE

The voters of Boston are the ones who should decide whether the teachers of the city's schools must reside in Boston, William G. O'Hare, candidate for reelection to the school committee, asserted in a se[ries] of enthusiastic mottos.

"There should be a referendum on the ballot and the citizens should be allowed to make the decision themselves," said Mr. O'Hare. "I believe, and I think the majority of our citizens will agree with me, that by maintaining a residence in our schools any incumbent should within a year of their appointment become a resident of our city. I intend to conduct a fight to allow citizens themselves to vote on this most important question."

HUB DOCTOR SENTENCED IN AUTO CASE; APPEALS

Dr. Gaspard M. Garoyn, thirty-nine years old, of Massachusetts avenue, Boston, was found guilty today in Somerville Court, of operating an automobile so as to endanger lives and safety of the public, and was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in $500. Police alleged he [was] in collision with an automobile operated by Patrick [illegible] Fowler House boulevard, West Somerville, at Washington and Medford streets, Somerville, October 4. The Maguire machine was knocked over on the sidewalk. A passenger in Dr. Garoyn's car was injured.

AGED TEACHER FALLS FIVE STORIES; MAY DIE

Lowell, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Miss Elsie Hamilton, aged seventy, a retired school teacher, said to have served for many years in Lynn, fell five stories today from the fire escape of a building where she made her home. She was badly injured and is not expected to live.

PIANOS vs. POLITICS

Or Why I Am Not Running for Mayor

—J. P. COLLINS

The eyes of all Massachusetts are turned on the election of a Mayor of Boston; yes, the eyes of all New England and of a goodly part of the whole country.

It may not be an unmixed blessing, but certainly the voters cannot complain of a lack of candidates to pick from. Ten men have qualified as candidates and their names will confront the voter when he enters the voting booth on Election Day, unfolds his ballot and prepares to mark his choice of a general manager for this great municipal corporation for the next four years.

COUNT 'EM! TEN OF 'EM! WAS ANY CITY EVER PRESENTED WITH SUCH A CHOICE? "Let's see what the record says," "Al" Smith would say. The record is not before me, but in its absence it is safe to say that no city of the size of Boston has had such a field of candidates for Mayor—not, at least, in recent years.

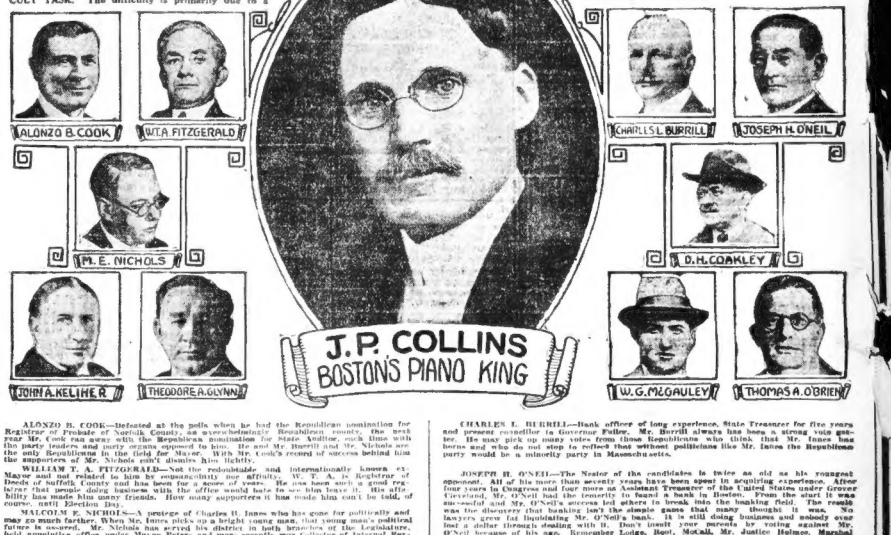
COOK, FITZGERALD, NICHOLS, KELIHER, GLYNN, BURRILL, O'NEIL, COAKLEY, McGAULEY, O'BRIEN!

TEN OF 'EM! All but one experienced in politics and all but one of whom have held public office.

BOSTON OUGHT TO BE ABLE TO GET A GOOD MAYOR FROM SUCH A FIELD. TO GET THE BEST POSSIBLE MAYOR IS A MORE DIFFICULT TASK. The difficulty is primarily due to a charter forced upon the city of Boston sixteen years ago. Secondarily, it may be due to too great personal ambition.

But who are these men who seek the highest office within the gift of the voters of the metropolis of New England?

Here they are in the order in which their names will appear on the ballot:



ALONZO B. COOK—Defeated at the polls when he had the Republican nomination for Registrar of Probate of Norfolk County, an overwhelmingly Republican county, the next year Mr. Cook ran as an Independent Republican candidate for State Auditor, much time with the party leaders and party organs opposed to him. He and Mr. Burrill and Mr. Nichols are the only Republicans in the field for Mayor. With Mr. Cook's record of success behind him the supporters of Mr. Nichols can't dismiss him lightly.

WILLIAM T. A. FITZGERALD—Not the redoubtable and internationally known ex-Mayor and not related to him by consanguinity nor affinity. W. T. A. is Registrar of Deeds of Suffolk County and has been for a score of years. He has made a good registrar that people doing business with the office would hate to see him leave it. His affiliations have been with the party Friends. How many supporters he has made him can't be told, of course, until Election Day.

MALCOLM E. NICHOLS—A protege of Charles H. Innes who has gone far politically and may go much farther. When Mr. Innes picks up a bright young man, that young man's political future is assured. Mr. Nichols has served his district in both branches of the Legislature, held appointive office under Mayor Peters and more recently was Collector of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts. Those who say that Mr. Innes will be the real Mayor if Mr. Nichols is elected either don't know either gentlemen or are simply indulging in political literature—mostly the latter. Mr. Innes naturally will be influential if Mr. Nichols is elected and it will not be a bad thing for Boston if he is. But Mr. Innes will not be the real Mayor if Mr. Nichols gets a plurality of the votes any more than he was the real Governor when Mr. Cox sat in Beacon Hill. Mr. Cox owed as much to Mr. Innes as Mr. Nichols owes to him, yet no man could have been more scrupulously observant of the proprieties than was Mr. Innes when Mr. Cox was Governor. A few more Charles H. Innes wouldn't harm Boston, the Republican party nor the State of Massachusetts.

JOHN A. KELIHER—Legislator, Purchasing Agent for the City of Boston, Congressman for eight years, member of the State House Building Commission and Sheriff of Suffolk County, "Jack" Keliher's strength with the people and his weakness with the political bosses has been his independence. Never given to straddling, he has walked always everywhere. Sometimes it has been bloody from the blows of political conflict, but never has it been bowed to the bosses. Not the worst thing that can be said about him is that he has remained poor while others who started with him in public life have grown rich. Brilliant, honest and courageous, he is a credit to the Democratic party. He can say as Bonnen's Pilot says, to Montaigne's paraphrase: "Oh, Neptune, thou canst save me if thou will; thou mayest sink me if thou will; but whatever may befall I shall hold my tiller true."

THEODORE A. GLYNN—Called "The Butcher Boy" as a term of derision by his opponents. His friends apply the same term to him as one of affection. And he has friends everywhere. Some say he is not "heavy," but in Ohio they said the same thing about Warren G. Harding, and in Massachusetts they said the same thing about Calvin Coolidge. Some still say it about Mr. Coolidge, but from his lofty position he views the charges with tolerance, perhaps with amusement. So, that "Teddy" is in good company in being the object of such a charge. Sometimes opposed politically to and by Mayor Curley, Glynn is fortunate just now in being in the good grace of the Mayor. He holds the office of Fire Commissioner by virtue of the Mayor's preferment. He is the Mayor's candidate for Mayor. Therefore, he must be regarded as an extremely formidable candidate, for the present Mayor is an astute politician. "Teddy" Glynn has a personality that makes friends for him. In such fights as this it is a worthwhile asset to have your opponents speak tolerantly and even kindly of you. It will mean a good deal if in the last few days of the campaign the Democratic voters show any tendency towards uniting on a candidate.

CHARLES L. BURRILL—Bank officer of long experience, State Treasurer for five years and present councillor in Governor Fuller. Mr. Burrill always has been a strong vote getter. He may pick up many votes from those Republicans who think that Mr. Innes has been and who do not stop to reflect that without politicians like Mr. Innes the Republican party would be a minority party in Massachusetts.

JOSEPH H. O'NEIL—The Nestor of the candidates is twice as old as his youngest opponent. All of his more than seventy years have been spent in acquiring experience. After four years in Congress and four more as Assistant Treasurer of the United States under Grover Cleveland, Mr. O'Neil had the temerity to found a bank in Boston. From the start it was successful and Mr. O'Neil's success led others to break into the banking field. The result was the discovery that banking isn't the simple game that many thought it was. No lawyers grew fat liquidating Mr. O'Neil's bank. It is still doing business and nobody ever lost a dollar through dealing with it. Don't insult your parents by voting against Mr. O'Neil because of his age. Remember Lodge, Root, McCall, Mr. Justice Holmes, Marshal Foch and a few others.

DAN COAKLEY—The sinews petrel of the campaign! Canniin and honest, fearless and aggressive, the doughty Brighton lawyer has completely set the Boston electorate afire. To date his campaign has been the liveliest campaign of all. He has drawn immense crowds and what he says compels attention. Many who seem so aloof, remain to cheer. He has apparently convinced the electorate of Boston that his disbarment was an absolute injustice, that he was convicted without trial, with no opportunity to face his accusers, and no chance to tell his own story. Could a justice of the Supreme Court in the Pelletier removal trial, in which Coakley is alleged to have conspired with Pelletier, and in which Coakley was not a party, decide in a trial of Dan Coakley that he was not guilty of conspiracy with Pelletier in Dan Coakley's disbarment case? Whatever you think of Dan Coakley, there can be but one answer to that question, and that is the question that Dan is nightly asking on the stump. Perhaps he will find his vindication in the fact that the people who hear him agree with him. Perhaps that will satisfy him—perhaps not. If Dan Coakley is elected Mayor of Boston, Boston will be sure of a capable and honest, aggressive administration. Certainly, the greatest trial lawyer Massachusetts has seen since the days of Joseph Choate is capable of giving Boston a great administration. Dan's friends call him the "Al Smith" of Boston.

WALTER G. McGAULEY—The youngest of all the candidates has been longer in the field than any except Mr. Fitzgerald. Moreover, has not hesitated to spend his own money in advertising his qualifications. Mr. McGauley has faith in himself and that is a splendid asset. Dr. McGauley is more than a good dentist. He is a good business man.

THOMAS C. O'BRIEN—The Fortunate Youth! Mr. O'Brien has been holding public office for the past thirteen years or so. Governor Fox appointed him to his first office and Governor Cox to his present one. Dropped from one office by Governor Coolidge, he was immediately given a much better one by Mayor Peters. Dropped from that by Mayor Curley, Governor Cox gave him still a better one. Talk about being kicked upstairs! Mr. O'Brien expects to be kicked still further up, his present objective being the Mayor's chair. Mr. O'Brien's political pathway, since early defeats for the Legislature in his home ward, has been strewn with roses. Such a young man will bear watching!

Above, in brief, are the mayoralty selections. Quite a field to pick from. Some excellent selections, some not so good and none really bad.

If we talked about nothing but politics in this advertisement, they would charge us political rates for it. So, we discuss Politics and Pianos, or Mayors and Music.

There is some analogy between the political situation in Boston and the piano situation. In purchasing pianos there are excellent ones to select from, some not so good and some pretty bad.

IN BUYING A PIANO FROM COLLINS, YOUR FIELD IS LIMITED TO GOOD SELECTIONS. IN VOTING FOR MAYOR YOU MAY MAKE A MISTAKE. YOU CAN MAKE NO MISTAKE IN BUYING A PIANO FROM COLLINS. WHATEVER YOU PAY, YOU GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH. AND, IF NOT SATISFIED, YOU GET YOUR MONEY BACK.

There are a large number of candidates for Mayor to select from but at my piano warerooms you will find the largest selection of pianos in the country.

YOU CANNOT BE SURE OF GETTING A GOOD MAYOR. BUT YOU CAN BE SURE OF GETTING A GOOD PIANO IF YOU GET IT FROM COLLINS, THE PIANO KING.

25 GIRL WARDS VICTIMS OF JOHNSON

Increase Bail of Superintendent of Long Island Baptist Orphanage

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Bail for Wilson Johnson, superintendent of the Long Island Baptist Orphanage, who is under arrest on charges of attacking one of the girl inmates of the institution, was increased from $10,000 to $25,000 today after testimony had been introduced in Nassau county court that twenty-five girls of the home had been victims.

Magistrate Ellperin refused a plea of counsel for Johnson that the case be postponed for two weeks and set the trial for Friday.

Charles H. Warner, president of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, told the court that fifty-one girls of the home had been given examinations and that twenty-five of them showed evidence of having been attacked.

WILL DRIVE MOOSE AWAY FROM SCHOOL IN MAINE

Belfast, Me., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The problem of the big bull moose that has been frightening children at the airport and Swanville by peering at schoolhouse windows has been solved. Superintendent E. E. Hollick has been notified that Game Warden F. M. Bailey will be permitted by the department of fisheries and game to employ men to drive the moose and his family out of Waldo county and into the deep woods.

'SOUTH AMERICA PEACE MODEL,' —COOLIDGE

President, In Accepting Statue of San Martin, Lauds Reason Over War

Washington, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—A revolutionary hero of three South American nations—Jose De San Martin of Argentina—came to new honors today in the unveiling here of a bronze equestrian statue of the liberator, as a gift to the American people from the people of Argentina.

Highest honors, military and official, attended presentation of the statue by Ambassador Pueyrredon of Argentina, and its acceptance in an address by President Coolidge.

The status of the hero of the revolutionary struggle of Argentina, Chile and Peru stands in Judiciary Square.

SECOND WASHINGTON.

South American statesmanship, with its goal of lasting peace, was held up as a model for a world by President Coolidge in accepting the monument to General San Martin, soldier, patriot and statesman.

Praising San Martin as Latin-America's George Washington and one of the foremost creators of the new world, the President stressed "the fact that South American statesmanship has, on the whole, been dominated by an earnest and increasingly successful purpose" to avoid war.

"Now when 'men and nations are all giving heed to the voice which pleads for peace,' the President continued, "they will do well to turn to these lessons from the states manship, the experience, and the constant inspiration of the South American nations."

REASON VS. FORCE.

Expressing the hope that the San Martin statue would "stand through the centuries as an inspiration to all who love liberty," the President added:

"May it ever be an added reminder of the fellowship between the great nation which gives and that which is honored to receive it. May it serve to keep in the minds and hearts of all humankind the realization of the noble and honored place which is held by that republican system of the new world, of which he was one of the foremost creators."

"They have looked to the substitution of reason for force," he said. "They have repeatedly recognized in the most practical fashion and difficult circumstances, that even issues of vital interest to the national welfare may be determined to the advantage of all concerned without resort to hostilities.

"Such problems as international boundary disputes, involving sovereignty over great areas and populations, have been settled through arbitration or adjudications time and again. And these settlements have been followed by demonstrations of good will and mutual confidence where war, no matter what its verdict, would surely have added to the exasperations of both parties and left a heritage of that mutual distrust which so commonly is responsible for increased armaments and future wars."

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS BEST BULWARK

Therein Lies Greatest Safety for American Republic, Asserts Bush

That the greatest bulwark of safety for the American republic lies in the freedom enjoyed by the press in the United States was the opinion voiced today by Irving T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminals, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was the speaker at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon at its headquarters.

That freedom, the speaker continued, was due to the independence of newspaper publishers, who, because of the revenue obtained from advertising, were not attracted by offers of subsidies from government cliques or party politicians.

IN ACCORD WITH HUGHES.

Reviewing his experiences of two years ago, when he visited Russia, the speaker declared he was in full accord with ex-Secretary of State Hughes in refusing to acknowledge the Communist government.

"There is, however, a lesson to be learned from Russia," Mr. Bush asserted, "and that is the need of proper leadership for the American masses.

"There is always abroad among them an idealistic dreamer filled with promises of an Utopia such as the Communists held out to the Russian peasantry and industrial employes.

"To counteract any such movement here we should broadcast far and wide the utter failure of the experiment undertaken by the Communists in the Russian states."

One impression gained by his visit to France, the speaker declared to be the ignorance of the French people towards their economic situation since the armistice.

HAS KEPT TRUTH AWAY.

"The subsidized press in France," declared, "has kept from the people the truth—a state of affairs which does not exist in the United States."

Mr. Bush predicted a crisis in England brought about by the present impasse existing between English employers and their employes.

MAINE PRISON OFFICIALS ARE SUSPENDED

Thomaston, Me., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Nearly a score of officials and employes of the State Prison, who signed affidavits charging mismanagement, laxity of discipline and immoral conditions among the prisoners, made public by Governor Ralph O. Brewster at the meeting of the executive council, were suspended today.

They were suspended, Warden Lester D. Eaton explained, until after an investigation has been made. Action was taken on the authority of the State prison inspectors and Warden Eaton.

Nothing at present will be done to fill their places, the warden said, adding that they were "getting along fine" at the prison. Aside from this, he declined to make any statement, at present.

MISS BENNETT MUST PAY OVER $37,500

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 28 (U.N.S.).—Mrs. Katherine Frey of Louisville, Ky., won another victory today over Wilda Bennett, musical comedy star, when Supreme Court Justice Leander B. Faber refused to set aside the $37,500 verdict Miss Bennett was ordered to pay for alienating the affection of Charles Frey, her husband.

KEARSARGE ON STOCKS FOR REPAIRS

The U. S. S. Kearsarge, craneship of the United States Navy, was floated into the South Boston naval dry dock at 10:30 today. The vessel will undergo a general underwater cleaning and scraping and her propellers will be overhauled and repaired. It is expected about five days will be required to make the ship ready for active service.

Considerable criticism was directed at the Navy Department in Washington, at the time of the recent $51 disaster off Block Island, because the Kearsarge, equipped with a huge crane capable of a lifting capacity of 200 tons, was not available for participation in the rescue work. The vessel then was in dry dock receiving repairs at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

FEAR MAINE SCHOONER LOST WITH CREW OF 10

Portland, Me., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The five-masted schooner, Edna Hoyt, Captain Millard Griffin of Milbridge, is believed by relatives of the ten members of her crew to have been lost in the gale October 10. The schooner sailed from Norfolk, September 28 with a cargo of coal for Calais, Me. Some time later she was spoken at anchor five miles southeast of Hedgefence Light vessel. The schooner, built at Thomaston five years ago, registered 1,512 tons gross.

OATH GIVEN NEW HEALTH CHIEF

After a delay of a week, Dr. George H. Bigelow, appointed commissioner of public health to succeed the late Dr. Eugene R. Kelley, today qualified before Governor Fuller. An annual salary of $7,500 goes with the position.

Other officials to qualify before the Governor were Judge Ralph W. Robbins of the Leominster district court and Miss Mary W. Wimpenny of Edgartown as register of probate and insolvency for Dukes County. Miss Wimpenny is the only woman to hold such a position in Massachusetts.

Henry L. Bowles of Springfield, Congressman-elect from the Second district, successor to the late Congressman-elect George B. Churchill of Amherst, was also presented with a certificate of election.

Nominations presented by the Governor to the Executive Council were: John G. Corcoran of Hamilton as associate medical examiner of the second Essex district; David Comstock of Westfield, commissioner to qualify civil officers, and Thomas J. Hammond of Northampton, member of the commission to provide a mural painting for the 104th Infantry. Hammond succeeds Crawford J. Ferguson, resigned.

Mrs. Sharry's Funeral

The funeral of Mrs. Anna D. Sharry, wife of Police Sergt. Charles J. Sharry of the Somerville Police Department, will take place from her home at No. 218 Powder House boulevard, tomorrow at 9 o'clock in St. Clement's Church, with a solemn high mass of requiem.

FOUR ESCAPE INJURY AS AUTOS OVERTURN

SAVE A LIFE

Four persons narrowly escaped in an automobile crash today at the Revere parkway and Broadway, Revere, which overturned and wrecked both machines without any injury to the occupants.

Robert Wallace, of No. 181 Mountain avenue, Revere, and John J. McMackin, of No. 172 Winthrop avenue, were the drivers of the cars. McMackin was accompanied by his wife and Wallace by a woman whose name the police refuse to divulge. Wallace told the police the woman, a stranger to him, had been taken ill and he was rushing her to a hospital when the accident occurred.

One Year to Pay

Largest Operators OF Hudson Seal Coats

(Dyed Muskrat)

Protecting the Public

It has cost us thousands of dollars endeavoring to teach the innocent public the danger of burned skins and the need of honest advice in the purchase of a Hudson Seal (Dyed Muskrat) coat.

An Incident

The other day another burned skin coat (bought in a Boston store) came in for repairs. In the presence of ten customers in our show room this conversation took place: "Mr. Dolan, I am back again this year and my Hudson seal coat is falling apart, just as you told me it would." "I am sorry, Madam, but as I told you last year, you were stung and stung badly, a beautiful lemon for $350." I opened the coat and showed to the satisfaction of every person present the burnt skins so rotten and so thin that they compare favorably with a piece of tissue paper, while the fur still remained beautiful.

We Spend Our Money,

our brains and our time examining and testing our coats for your protection and through your patronage we are enjoying the most prosperous season of our career.

If there be a doubting Thomas among our readers who questions our claim that thousands of Hudson Seal (dyed muskrat) Coats are manufactured of burnt skins, we invite him and also the newspaper writers, the Boston Better Business Association, the investigators who are employed to protect honest, innocent buyers and we will prove every claim we make and many others.

No Wonder

honest buyers who are willing to spend honest, hard-earned money for an honest made, durable fur coat are flocking to Chas. P. Dolan & Son. They know where to find protection and to prove we mean protection when we say it,

COAL MEN TO CONFER

Representatives of the National Coal Association, the Central Pennsylvania Producers' Association and the Smokeless Coal Operators' Association of Virginia will confer with the New England Governors' Fuel Committee, of which John Hays Hammond is chairman, in the executive office at the State House tomorrow at 10 a. m.

The purpose of the conference is to check up on the progress made in the campaign to induce New England householders to burn substitutes for hard coal, particularly low volatile bituminous coal, and to secure a greater supply of the latter before cold weather interferes with transportation.

The committee will be represented by Edward W. Goss of Connecticut, J. C. Boyd of Maine, John W. Storrs of New Hampshire, E. L. Sprague of Rhode Island, J. C. Sherburne of Vermont and John Hays Hammond, Eugene C. Hultman and Representative Harry L. Shattuck of Massachusetts.

JAIL TERM AND $300 FINE IN RUM CASE; APPEALS

William Flynn was found guilty of keeping and exposing liquor for sale on Cambridge street, Charlestown, by Judge Sullivan in Charlestown Court today and given a sentence of three months in the House of Correction and a fine of $300. He appealed. Sergeant Thormer testified that analysis of the liquor showed it contained 9 per cent. of alcohol.

Straighten Up! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, dizzy, sick. Nothing else relieves that bilious, constipated feeling so nicely as candy-like "Cascarets." A box or one or two of these pleasant laxative tablets any time, to gently stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will feel fine, your head becomes clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink, skin rosy.

"Cascarets" gently cleanse, sweeten and refresh the entire system. They never gripe, overact or sicken. Directions for men, women and children on each box, any druggist.

Capt. William Prothero of the Cunarder Scythia sacrificed speed for safety and comfort of his passengers, hence brought the liner into East Boston today about two days late.

The Scythia met the full of the gale which has terrified shipping during the past ten days or two weeks, but came through unscathed. She had 649 passengers in her and of that list, there were 332 who landed at Boston.

All hands reported a pleasant voyage despite the rough going. At times racks were on the tables but in truth were not needed according to passengers and the steward. Captain Prothero operated ever for safety as was indicated last Thursday and Friday when the ship logged but 194 and 196 miles, respectively, almost half speed. Additional gales were encountered on Sunday and Monday and the ship's speed reduced but not quite so markedly as was the case earlier in the run.

HEAD OF BRITISH GOLF.

Among those landing was William Norman Bonas, chairman of the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club. In effect he's the head of golfing in Great Britain and he entertains some ideas which tend to indicate he believes in golf as golf has been since time immemorial.

There were several interesting persons in the cabin list including among others Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Adie, of Chestnut Hill, whose daughter Andrea was married at St. George's in London, on September 19, to Commander Hunter of the United States Navy, attached to the embassy at London. Mr. Adie remarked it was a most enjoyable wedding ceremony and breakfast following it at Brown's Hotel. The Adies visited in London and Paris and he enjoyed a week-end hunt at Devonshire.

H. Addington Bruce, well-known author, returned with Mrs. Bruce, who had anything but a pleasant passage. Mrs. Bruce has been sick during most of the voyage and was continually in the care of Dr. C. E. Harris, ship's surgeon. Mrs. Bruce had recovered sufficiently to be able to walk off the ship with Mr. Bruce. They traveled in England, Wales, France, Switzerland and Italy and have been gone several months.

LADY HAMILTON ARRIVES.

Lady Marjorie Dalrymple Hamilton came over to spend about three weeks visiting with friends in Boston and relatives in New York. She was but one of a number of vivacious young passengers, others of whom were Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Plant, who have been married not quite three weeks. Their honeymoon has been one succession of thrills what with its start via the air for Paris and return to London and then a rough passage over the Atlantic on their way to what will be their permanent home in Montreal, Canada.

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling — sick headache — torpid liver — constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

HOLD YOUTH IN VET'S DEATH

Charged with manslaughter, Morris Rose, 2, of Hammond street, Roxbury, was arrested today in connection with the death of Louis Hawkins, 65, a veteran of two wars, who lived at the Chelsea Naval Home. Rose pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to Nov. 6 by Judge Palmer in Roxbury Court.

According to police, the aged war veteran in Roxbury, Thursday, called Rose a name, whereupon the latter struck him a blow on the face, dropping to the ground. Hawkins bumped his head against the curb and suffered a fractured skull. He was taken to City Hospital, where he died.

Dempsey Floored! Buys a Flivver Mob Ruined

Mexico City, Oct. 28 (I.N.S.).—Jack Dempsey has taken the count at the hands of the Mexican law to the extent of 500 pesos.

A small automobile was used as a grandstand to witness the triumphal arrival of Dempsey in Mexico City. The crowds, rushing to see the fighter, trampled over the automobile and wrecked it.

According to the workings of the Mexican law, Dempsey was responsible for the collection of the crowd and therefore responsible for the damage. He was assessed 500 pesos, which he paid with a smile.

RAIN AND COLD WAVE FOR HUB

Light rains with colder weather are predicted for Boston and vicinity tonight by the local weather bureau. Tomorrow will be fair and colder with fresh shifting winds from west and northwest.

A killing frost hit Boston suburbs when the temperature dropped.

An extremely cold wave still grips the northwest and is moving eastward. Rapid City, S. D. reported the lowest temperature of the year today, 14 below zero, the coldest ever recorded at that station since it was founded in 1898.

A low pressure area extending from the Lake Huron region to Florida with accompanying rains is reported. If this storm reaches New England before the extreme northwest cold wave, it will neutralize conditions here.

The upper lake regions and the Mississippi and Ohio Valley were blanketed with slight snows today.

MAN SHOT AND EMPLOYER ARRESTED

by many prominent professional and business men.

Wirth's story as told to police was that he and Rayne, Bowles and another attendant were the only persons in the studio at the time of the shooting.

"I was in the baths," said Wirth, "but I could hear what was said.

"As near as I can recall, Bowles spoke to Rayne about conditions in the studio, to which he made objection.

"Rayne said if he didn't like the conditions he could get out, and Bowles said: 'All right, give me my money and I'll get out.'

"Then there was a dispute as to how much money Bowles was entitled to, with men using a lot of profanity.

"Suddenly I heard several shots and running out, found Bowles bending on the floor and Rayne standing over him with a gun in his hand.

GUN FIRED IN STRUGGLE.

"I grabbed Rayne and took the gun away from him, and in the struggle it went off, the bullet passing between my right arm and body.

"Then I turned to Bowles to see how badly he was hurt, and Rayne ran to the rear of the building."

Meantime other occupants of the building, hearing the shots, notified Traffic Officer Fallon, on duty at High and Federal streets.

Fallon entered the studio as Rayne was struggling with a refractory window, and placed him under arrest on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill.

An ambulance was summoned and Bowles removed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where he was found to have three bullet wounds in the neck, one in the chin and another in the left upper arm.

BOWLES' OWN STORY.

Bowles, whose wounds are not believed to be serious, told his story to a Boston Evening American representative at the hospital.

"This was the second time I had worked at the studio," he said. "I was there from May to August last year, but left because of trouble with Rayne. I returned in March of this year at the request of Joseph W. Ward of Winthrop, co-partner in the studio, who is well liked by the employes.

"This morning at 10:30 Rayne arrived with a grouch as usual. I had done the work I was supposed to do and was sitting down reading a paper.

"Rayne asked me if I had nothing to do. I replied that I was all done, and we had words. He finally told me that if I didn't like conditions I could get out. I said 'all right, give me my money and I'll get.' Rayne walked away, saying I was no good, and I remained in the chair.

WAS ORDERED OUT.

"Mr. Ward came over and asked me the trouble, and after I told him he also walked away.

"Some time later Rayne came back and said: 'Are you still here?'

"I replied: 'I want my money.'

"You won't get it because you quit,' he said.

"I said I was going to stay right there until I got my money, and he told me to get out.

"What do you think I am?' he wanted to know.

"I told him I thought he was a fool, and he pulled a gun and fired six shots at me. Three hit me in the right side of the neck, one in the chin and one struck my left arm, breaking the bone.

"If I hadn't jumped for Rayne the bullet that struck me in the chin would have hit me in the temple and killed me."

PAINTER FALLS 25 FEET; BADLY HURT

Albert Paddock, 35, a painter living at No. 47 Pennsylvania avenue, Somerville, fell twenty-five feet from the second floor of the building at No. 231 Washington street today, sustaining fractures of the right leg and hip. Traffic Officer Harrington summoned an ambulance and assisted the injured man to the Haymarket Relief station, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Liquor Goes Into Jury Room and Vanishes

Salem, Oct. 28.—Something is wrong in the Essex County Superior Court jury room and magic it's some of the ancient witches returned, and maybe it isn't, according to City Marshal Daniel J. Phalen. He doesn't know just which.

What he does know is that for the second time, liquor evidence—the liquid kind—has gone into the jury room and has come out much depleted in bulk.

The latest case is that of Philip Donovan, found guilty of a liquor charge by a jury and discharged. But the liquor, which was forfeited, dwindled in the jury room by two bottles of White Horse whiskey and one can of alcohol.

BULGARS RENEW WAR, ATTACK GREEKS

Drummond, secretary-general of the League of Nations, acquainting him with the league council's decision that the Greeks and Bulgars must cease hostilities and withdraw from the ground they have occupied. M. Kalfoff, the Bulgarian Foreign Minister, says that categorical orders have been sent to Bulgarian troops to refrain from any act of hostility.

As to evacuating Greek territory, M. Kalfoff's message repeated that no Bulgarian soldier was on Greek soil. Nevertheless, he added, further orders have been sent to the Bulgarian commander to conform to the decision of the league.

The telegram said further that the military attaches of the powers will be received fittingly by Bulgaria.

The Minister added that the Greeks still were in Bulgaria with their artillery and that they bombarded Petrova Tuesday.

FLAPPER LOVE HIS DELIGHT

"The Retreat," a Hartford sanitarium.

"I never saw him with any stamps and yet I would observe stacks of stamped letters in his room. These he would have sent to the superintendent's office for mailing. Whether they were mailed or not I could not say," the witness stated.

Former Police Sergeant George H. Ellis, 77, and a life-long friend of Dr. Bush, told the court and jury that in his opinion the physician was a clean-minded man, one with whom he would trust his wife and daughters at all times.

He asserted that Doctor's joy over the receipt of gifts brought to him at Wellesley by the former senator and Mrs. Ellis.

"He appeared alert and keen mentally, in spite of his age," Senator Ellis testified.

HUNTER ELECTROCUTED BY 10,000 VOLTS IN FENCE

Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 28 (A.P.).—While returning home today from a hunting trip, Clifford Brothers, 19, of Raymondville, N. Y., was killed by 10,000 volts of electricity in attempting to crawl through a barbed wire fence. A high tension wire from the Twin States Gas & Electric Company's power station in West Dummerston had slipped from its insulation and fallen across the fence. Louis Hunsberger was badly burned trying to rescue his companion. Humphrey was wounded on hands, head and throat by barbs in the fence. Both young men have been employed in a restaurant here.

TODAY

when you read Judge Gary's statement that steel mills are running at 80 per cent. of capacity, remember that the "capacity" is increasing every year.

Business and prosperity in this country have only just begun. For every dollar's worth of enterprises developed, there are $1,000, in plain sight, waiting to be developed.

SINCE YALE UNIVERSITY started, 224 years ago, books in the library have doubled in number every twenty years. The total now is 1,390,000 and every year 50,000 books are added, others being put in storages to make room.

This proves that organization and condensation are lacking in education. Buckle is said to have read 60,000 books. Voltaire apologized for his "small" library of 6,000 volumes, each with notes in Voltaire's fine handwriting. Catherine of Russia bought the library, and everything else in Voltaire's house.

WHAT IS needed is not an impossible library of 1,390,000 books, but rather 100 essential books, boiled down into 10 volumes with an education in those 10 volumes. The thing could be done.

AT A CONFERENCE on "Modern Parenthood" there was displayed unusual common sense. Professor Froelicher describes autocratic class room methods, bullying children, for the convenience of adults, instead of studying child development.

"THE LITTLE ROLLO 'good boy' is not the best kind of boy," say the learned professors, and they are right. A quiet, good boy is too often like a quiet watch that does not tick—the mainspring broken.

Children are naturally savages, and to check their normal development is to diminish their chances. Poor, big families develop men and women of genius, because the children are, at least, let alone, free to develop inborn power.

DANCE BAN IN BOSTON SCHOOLS

in the slightest over this action as it was explained by experts to be purely a precautionary safeguard and in no way prompted by any defective structural condition of the school buildings.

Both ceilings fell just as the children had left the classrooms. The first shower of plaster occurred after the dismissal, on the first floor had been cleared for recess and the ceiling in another classroom fell next day just after the children had gone home.

An investigation not only of that school building but all others in the Boston school district immediately followed the crumbling of the ceilings in the Henry L. Pierce School building. Inspectors made a report to Commissioner of Public Buildings John H. Mahony that the hall had been used for dancing and that the pupils had recently danced the "Charleston," which has tremendous vibratory power if the assembly is large.

Commissioner Mahoney's department carefully inspected every school building and submitted a written report to the School Committee Commissioners, who in turn reported to Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah E. Burke. An order issued on Tuesday by Superintendent Burke forbids all dancing and rythmatic exercises in all but the high schools, and such gatherings there are restricted to the ground floors.

The school and building authorities were brought to realize by the ceiling fall incident at Henry L. Pierce School and the Pickwick Club horror and other accidents that modern dancing has subjected structures to a new and severe strain.

LIKE EARTHQUAKES.

In other words the jazz and much discussed "Charleston," with its heel and toe and its body gyrations have come to be classed with earthquakes and disturbances. To be sure they are of a much milder form, but they constitute a distinct hazard nevertheless.

The answer is that when school and other buildings of public assembly were erected the architects and engineers and builders did not take into consideration the frank departure upon the structures by modern life. Flappers and shieks and disciples of jazz and terpsichore may resent having their pastime put in the seismic class, but it has come to be an official fact right here in Boston.

Superintendent Burke was today reported to be giving the matter the most profound consideration.

Building Commissioner Mahony wished, through the columns of the Boston Evening American, to assure parents that there was no reason to be apprehensive for the safety of their little ones.

"Purely and simply a wise precaution," said Commissioner Mahony. "It's better to be on guard. None of the buildings was found to be in anyway unsafe, but some of the older school structures cannot stand the strain of modern dances, nor can certain types of modern buildings for that matter. It is a matter that demands the strictest study.

"It has piled a new responsibility onto a department already far overtaxed. Old-fashioned dances were as safe as they are decorous, but these new jazz steps are a hazard.

"The glide steps were not only graceful but safe. I never saw this Charleston that they talk so much about, but I understand it's done by impersonating a couple of jumping jacks, and of course when many couples behave like that it's bound to have an effect on a building.

"Since the unfortunate Pickwick Club affair it has been deemed wise to take no chances. You recall after the Iroquois Theatre fire theatres all over the country adopted strict precautionary measures, but these periods of care soon vanish.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That is Pleasant to Take.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation, and the inflamed and parched tissues. As the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Pie 'Cal' Refused Stunt of Apple Boosters

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 28—University of Vermont women were surprised to find the President and Mrs. Coolidge had declined the offer of an apple pie from the Girls' Club of the university.

Their amazement was due to the fact that there is no such organization as the Girls' Club at the university, and no group of women students had conceived the idea of making such a pie.

It was discovered a pie had been planned as a project for one of the 4-H clubs in the State as part of the apple-week program. No plans had been made, since the clubs were waiting for either a refusal or acceptance.

MARX BROS. HIT WALLOP IN 'THE COCOANUTS'

Their All-New Clowning Is Feature of Musical Comedy at Tremont

We... the four Marx brothers—"Harpo," "Groucho," "Chico" and "Zeppo"—hit Boston a wallop with their brand new dose of laugh-medicine, "The Cocoanuts," and several first nighters at the Tremont nearly fell out into the aisle in consequence of the grand united and amalgamated Marxian antics.

The thing which will most soften hardened theatregoers who visit "The Cocoanuts" is the fact that the Marx clowning is practically all new stuff. With most footlight comics peddling the same merchandise year after year it is a marvel to see new nonsense trotted out every five minutes.

Irving Berlin wrote the music, and matched it with lyrics—so you can be sure that the harmonic portion of the entertainment will keep your feet wiggling. Berlin proves to have still new tuneful tricks up his sleeve. He floors you with complicated rhythms which the chorus miraculously follows, and his harmonies run wild races over the scales.

George Kaufman is credited with the book, which is a scream whenever the Marxes are speaking. Charles LeMaire's costumes give the eye a lot to be joyful over. The settings are grand and glorious. And the instrumentalists in the orchestra pit get some tough competition from the Paloma Orchestra. These exotic musicians can wheedle almost as much out of stringed instruments as 420-fingered "Harpo" himself.

The cast includes Mabel Withee, who sentimentalizes with Jack Barker between laugh-sessions. But both sing well, and are personable young people. George Hale and Bernice Speer are Eddie and Tony; so now you know who they are. Eddie and Tony dance neatly. The Breen Brothers dance hurtingly. And the De Marcos do complicated ballroom dancing with agile grace.

Margaret Dumont is as dignified as possible as Mrs. Potter. You know, there's always a Mrs. Potter—a big woman who wants her daughter to marry a wretch—in this case impersonated by Henry Whittemore. Janet Valie abets him in stealing the bracelet, and, which is more important, sings and looks great. Basil Ruysdael is Hennessy, who, of course, is a detective—and there are Hugh Chilvers and Almeda Fowler to complete the cast.

"Groucho" talks endlessly, scoring bullseyes with nonchalance. "Harpo" doesn't talk at all, but scores bullseyes just the same—employing pantomime. "Chico" is an Italian crook, and "Zeppo" just trails along with the crowd.

Lucia Ames Mead Speaks on Problems of Peace

Newport Set Lingering in City-by-the-Sea, Listen Attentively to Boston Woman Lecturer

Betty Alden

THE SOMNOLENCE OF late Autumn in Newport, what with the Four Hundred scattered here, there and everywhere, to spas and springs and city homes, has been broken. The Misses Ida and Ellen Mason, aristocrats of the old regime, served up a late season event of social flavor, mixed with world affairs and presented by that imposing figure of the politico-social world, Lucia Ames Mead.

AT THE STATELY Rhode Island avenue home of the Misses Mason, Mrs. Mead spoke on the World Court, to a goodly representation of Rhode Island femininity.

A STORY AFLOAT IN Newport that Mr. and Mrs. Harry Symes Lehr are casting about for a suitable Newport habitat is already agitating the Casino—Bailey's Beach—Villa set. The Lehrs were Newporters of old in the days when Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs reigned.

MRS. FISH IS no more, and Mrs. Oelrichs at her Rose Cliff villa virtually is a recluse, taking no part in the frivolous Summer life of the colony. Mr. Lehr, a recognized exquisite, with penchant for color harmony, will be welcomed by Newport mondaines, as arbiter supreme of becoming feminine raiment.

NEWPORT STILL holds Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, wife of Brigadier-General Cornelius Vanderbilt. She came to town to visit her sister, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, who was taken ill just prior to the marriage of her son, Ogden Goelet and Miss Roberta Willard, a union that interested the smart set of several cities.

THE RICHARD T. WILSON villa in Narragansett avenue houses Mrs. Vanderbilt, but Mrs. Goelet has departed from Ochre Court and is convalescing at the Hotel Plaza in New York. In New York, also, is

The Big Sale of Overcoats Will End Saturday at 5:30 P. M.

White's Annual Sale of Men's Winter OVERCOATS

All at $39.50

We intended, when we planned this sale, to offer, as usual, splendid overcoats at a big saving.

But our success has gone so far beyond our expectations that it is difficult with our restrained advertising statements to convey to you what attractive values go in this sale. The head of the department says

"There are Overcoats in this Sale that are the biggest values I have ever secured for our October Sale"

Fabrics Are All Wool—Tested and Certified by Our Consulting Chemists, Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge

Another thing—Seven years ago we adopted the policy of not quoting former prices or comparative values in our advertising. This practice automatically prevents exaggeration.

While our advertising thus becomes trustworthy, it nevertheless is sometimes difficult (as in this sale) to convey to our readers a clear idea of the remarkable values we offer—measured in terms of dollars.

We would like to tell you just how much these overcoats would cost usually. But instead will have to suggest—

SAVE-A-LIFE DRIVE FOR 3 MORE DAYS

Autoists and Children Have Short Time Left to Win Reward

SAVE A LIFE

Autoists and children have only three more days in which to win a Boston Evening American "Save a Life" reward. On Saturday, October 31, the last list of careful children and safe autoists will be published in the Boston Evening American.

Hundreds of children have been made happy in visiting their names appearing in the Boston Evening American as the result of the "Save a Life" campaign, and a proud picture of this paper to receive the awards for "save a life" medals employed in crossing streets.

Many autoists have been greatly pleased also in being mentioned as safe and sane drivers, and in receiving $20 gold pieces as their reward.

The campaign has aroused a determined effort on the part of many who, although realizing that deaths by automobiles have become a serious problem, were inclined to accept the situation as it stood without any attempt to do their part in preventing an increase. Now, they feel, that they should do the right thing at the right time and in the right way at all times to help overcome this terrible hazard.

Auto fatalities have increased so during the past few years that it has become necessary to devote much time and expert attention to combat this modern day menace.

The University of California has just appointed a professor of traffic problems whose job will be the solution of traffic problems in larger cities together with methods for the prevention of needless much that pertains to the welfare of the coming generations, has reached a critical and all-important stage, and necessitates the co-operation of all grown-ups, old and young as well as the child just large enough to cross the street without aid.

This problem must be solved

At the Pierpont School, Hudson [illegible] a series of [illegible] the children are being taught just [illegible] the Boston Evening American has been attempting in its "Save a Life" campaign.

Posters on "Save a Life" week appear [illegible] this paper has a special [illegible] to them by their class teachers.

The child of school is going to be the adult of the next few years. Here the instruction should begin.

With three days left there is still opportunity for many more autoists and children to win awards.

Why not bring the campaign to a conclusion with a vim and vigor that will overshadow all previous attempts at winning a reward.

Children living in Boston may get their rewards at the office of the "Save a Life" Editor. So may the auto winners.

Although the campaign ends next Saturday, winners of rewards, either autoists or children, will have one week from the date of the publication of their names in which to [illegible] claim them.

Children winners living outside of Boston will receive their rewards by mail if they notify the "Save-A-Life" Editor as to the date their names appeared in the Boston Evening American.

PIMPERNEL and ROSEMARY by Baroness Orczy

A Story of Love and Mystery That Bares the Heart of the Chief Plotter

PETER BLAKENEY, a carefree young man, is in love with Rosemary Fowkes, but he forgets to propose, and Jasper Tarkington wins her. Rosemary, a writer, is induced to go to Transylvania and arrange a series of articles intended to clear the air of much international unpleasantness. Instantly she finds herself in the midst of a group of plotters. Even her best friends are arrested as spies, and though her husband is a great help, he always seems to fail in his efforts. So Rosemary decides to watch and wait.

Number Ten was giving General Naniescu some advice. "It would not pay you, my friend. Lady Tarkington has your written promise and she would raise hell if you played her false."

CHAPTER XXVII

GENERAL NANIESCU was enjoying himself thoroughly. He had his friend Number Ten sitting there opposite him and Number Ten was looking as savage as a bear.

"You had no right," he said, with a savage oath, "to go behind my back."

But Naniescu was at his blandest. "What could I do, my friend?" he asked. "What would you have had me do? Decline to deal with that young Blakeney? Then those precious articles would have been lost to me forever."

"I told you the other day that I would get those articles for you. Ask Kervoisin here if I have ever failed in anything I have undertaken. I had the manuscript in my hand when that young blackguard snatched it out of my hand. Curse him!"

Naniescu leaned back in his chair and gave a guttural complacent laugh. "I do agree with you, my dear friend," he said. "That young Blakeney is an unmitigated blackguard. I have had to deal with some in my day, but never with such a corrupt [illegible] but you know you English [illegible] are astonishing! Every [illegible] big fellows [illegible] money [illegible] blackguards. Yes [illegible] blackguards! Oh, [illegible]"

"Yes," Number Ten [illegible]

"And the [illegible] blackguard [illegible] also a big fellow getting money out of you, for you have been a fool as well as a knave, my friend. I only asked you ten thousand sterling for the manuscript."

"Are you pretending that you know what I paid Blakeney?" Naniescu asked with his most fatuous smile. "Because, my friend, I don't mind telling you that I paid nothing at all."

"I am glad to hear it," Number Ten retorted curtly, "because that will make it easier for you to pay me the ten thousand now."

But this idea amused [illegible] General so much that [illegible] nearly rolled off his chair laughing.

"Why [illegible] should I pay you ten thousand pounds sterling?"

"Because [illegible] you don't those articles will never be published."

"Ah, bah!" Naniescu exclaimed with a mocking grin. "Who will prevent it?"

"I, of course."

"You can't do [illegible], my friend," Naniescu rejoined complacently.

"I defy you to do it."

"Is that a challenge?"

Number Ten had said this very quietly. Then he smiled because Naniescu's face expressed arrogance first, then bewilderment, and finally indecision.

"Is it a challenge?" he reiterated. "I don't mind, you know, one way or the other."

Naniescu's bewilderment had become ludicrous, and at one moment when he took his handkerchief and mopped his streaming forehead the face of his spy in chief became distorted with that look of ferocious cruelty which was so characteristic of him.

"I haven't a great deal of time to spare," Number Ten remarked dryly. "If you accept my challenge I start for London tonight."

"You'll never get there in time," Naniescu rejoined with an attempt at swagger.

Number Ten [illegible] "Don't you think so?"

"The frontier is closed——"

"Would you rather risk it [illegible] pay me the ten thousand pounds?"

Naniescu was afraid of Number Ten, afraid of his daring, his [illegible] his unscrupulous determination to carry through what he has [illegible]

Ten thousand pounds! [illegible] secret service funds, not out of Naniescu's own pocket. Never [illegible]

"If I pay you that ten thousand," he said [illegible] "what guarantee [illegible] the articles will be published?"

"None," was Number Ten's [illegible] reply. "[illegible] don't pay [illegible] the ten thousand, I guarantee that they will not be published."

The Money Now

Then at last Naniescu gave in. "Oh, have it your own way [illegible] [illegible] explained."

"The money now," Number Ten said curtly. "You may as well send one of your clerks over to the bank for it. I prefer that to taking your check."

Presently [illegible] with a bundle of crisp [illegible] notes in his hand. [illegible] the money over to his spy in chief without a qualm and certainly without regret.

"This being Monday," Number Ten

Rod and Gun

By TOM HORGAN.

When Carl Rinder of the Quincy Yacht Club puts the bridle away until the Winter each year he oils up a trusty shooting iron and makes for the Cape. Sandy Neck, in the township of Barnstable, is his usual autumnal haunt and last night Carl served to more than a hundred sportsmen and friends gathered at the club that he can shoot as well as he can sail.

The proof was in the shape of a game pie, even more pleasing to the palate than those of preceding years, and Carl's game suppers have become quite an event on the South Shore.

Carl and a party of friends spent about a week at Sandy Neck during which 843 ducks, brant and coot were bagged [illegible] included Ralph Teele, Bill Howe, Ex-Commodore Mulrish of the W. Easton Yacht Club, Lew Chandler, Bill Reid, the Winthrop boat builder, Henry Bedford and Malcolm Morse.

Most of the shooting was done in tides off shore, according to Carl, who said that [illegible] brant were taken from small boats. The ducks, however, were shot on the marshes in the neighborhood of Sandy Neck.

It might be well to make a note of this if you ever consider coot for table use. Carl's method of cooking coot admits only the use of the breasts and the result would be a surprise for anyone who never tried to cook and eat a coot recently in its native state. The coot is commonly associated with [illegible] pies easily absent from [illegible] stewed in the same manner, and [illegible] methods, Rinder [illegible] thing of that sort is no advantage with a coot.

FOUR TEAMS HAVE MONOPOLY ON GRID STARS

DARTMOUTH, MICHIGAN, ARMY AND PENN STRONG

By STED CHANDLER

Whoever picks an All-American team this year not only has his courage with him, but is also confronted by a peculiar situation.

These mythical teams are at best more or less the bunk, but it seems that they have to be picked to supply a certain want in human nature, and, of course, to give the sport writers' diversion.

Even in past years it has been obviously unfair to [illegible] eleven men from [illegible] best, especially [illegible] has not had the opportunity of seeing all the men in action. Still, a pretty good [illegible] drawn on the available [illegible] custom [illegible]

This year however it is [illegible] going to be difficult to pick eleven representative men from all sections of the country, but it is going to be a hard job trying to keep the chosen few from being confined to a small number of teams.

Seldom have the outstanding players been so herded together. There are four teams with five or more men who appear even now as All-American or at least all sectional possibilities. These teams are Pennsylvania, Army, Dartmouth and Michigan.

Take Penn, for instance. Al Kreuz and Charlie Rogers, are, according to Penn followers, almost sure choices. Even some sport writers agree. It is certain that they will both stand high up in the ratings. Then Capt. Wilson and Steracki have been demonstrating a brand of tackle play which is hard to beat. They will contend stiffly for the honors. Thayer and Singer fare likewise on the wings. Robinson stands out in a season which offers a dearth of sterling centers. Leith has gripped his quarterback assignment in such an expert way that Damon Runyon has already [illegible] of the East's best field generals.

Dartmouth, if she continues her schedule at her present clip, will present the following high grade players who will command some award for merit: Oberlander, Lane, Horton and McPhail in the backfield; Tully and Sage on the ends; Parker at tackle, Diehl at guard and Davis at center. "Swede" Oberlander will be hard to exclude from first honors and Myles Lane is pressing him hard. Dutch Diehl was considered by many writers last year as being All-American material. Tully and Sage are classy wingmen who cannot be relegated to the bushes. Josh Davis is one of the foremost pivot men in the East.

The Army, which has sprung into the limelight as if released by a spring, has a handsome array of stars. Wilson and Hewitt in the backfield are peerless performers, and also All-American selections of past years. Yeomans ranks with the best quarters [illegible] even his sub. Harding, is above the average. Capt. Baxter and Born are smashing ends who deserve consideration. Sprague and Saunders [illegible]

Michigan boasts of Benny Friedman, [illegible] is a peer [illegible] of the immortal Red Grange. Proof of this statement may be seen in [illegible] from [illegible] of the Red flash [illegible] dope. Per[illegible] to leave [illegible] Safer per[illegible]

FOUR REASONS why Murad is the World's Finest Cigarette

{FRAGRANT}
It is Nature's caprice to deliver her choicest aromas and fragrances in small packages. To the tiniest leaves and petals, she bequeaths her most exquisite perfumes. So to the Turkish leaf—one hundredth the size of a domestic leaf—Nature gives her rarest and finest tobacco "bouquet."

{COOL}
A leaf of domestic tobacco is coarse, thick and fibrous. A Turkish leaf is sheer, tender and silky. Obviously, it requires less heat to burn the latter. Turkish is by far the coolest smoking of all tobaccos because it requires less draft to keep it burning—and hence brings less heat to the lips.

{DISTINCTIVE}
The taste or flavor of Turkish tobacco is not duplicated by any other tobacco in the universe. Like the perfume of the hyacinth or the piquancy of mint, MURAD's taste is exclusively its own. Many smokers say, "You can tell a MURAD in the dark"—or identify its aroma, blindfolded.

{MILD}
The coarser the leaf, the stronger the smoke. The tobacco that is "heavy on the vine" is "heavy on the nerves." On the other hand, refined leaf makes a refined smoke. It is the silky delicacy of the MURAD leaf—the choicest Turkish—that makes it the gentlest smoke—caressing to throat and taste.

[illegible] who [illegible] tarium. It's [illegible] an eternal [illegible] and, [illegible] he's in [illegible] again, can see sunshine through the clouds. He starts by letting Wamby go [illegible] ing stars do not help building teams. They [illegible] in the present or future.

WAMBY was a great second base [illegible] fame with an unassisted triple play in a World Series game. None else ever did that. He sat on the be[illegible] of the time last Summer. He was a better ball player than most of the kids who were out on the field trying to make good. He knew it and everybody else did too. Sitting in the cave, knowing his day had passed didn't tend to make Wamby chipper nor cheerful. He's a fine, hard-working chap, but he's human. There's always a tug at the heart strings of the sentimental fans when a good old-timer passes [illegible] prove to keep out of bankruptcy. The rich, first division clubs can afford to keep the veterans around, for insurance. The little fellows are better off without them.

COLLEGE sport lovers will not [illegible] Pennsylvania crowd that refused to give Eddie Farrell his baseball "P." Eddie was captain of the team and had played great ball for the Quakers for three years. He was a fine lead er as well as a great athlete. He was signed by the Giants last Spring. Late in June, with one game left on the Penn schedule, McGraw had to have an infielder. So he sent for Farrell, used him the day after he reported. Naturally the youngster wanted to grasp his opportunity. It was a chance that mightn't come again in two or three years. Better players have parked longer than that on benches. The kid had a possible fortune in his pocket. Loyalty to dear old Alma Mater in his case would have been plain insanity. It would have been as foolish and futile as the action of that athletic committee.

THE dumbness of boxing promoters transcends all description. The other night in Newark, Floyd Johnson, a battered and burned out shell of a never very good boxer, was [illegible] Harry Wills. Johnson hadn't as much chance as a plowhorse against Man o' War. The fight was 'one of those things,' on the face of it. The towel was tossed into the ring after Wills had patted Floyd a few rather rough thumps. The crowd was sold out and sore. This row will cause some effort at legislation against boxing in Jersey, where promoters [illegible] country for million dollar purses. The boys who run the so called sport ought to be chased back to honest work. It's their own fault.

PUNCHERS IN TUSSLE AT ARENA

New Jersey Promoters Are Using Blackjacks on the Boxing Game

By JACK CONWAY

JIMMY JONES of Youngstown, O., who arrives in our midst to [illegible] has been made a favorite [illegible] bout with Al Mello [illegible] welterweight which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at the Boston Arena tomorrow night. The speculative element is quot[ing] odds of 10 to 7.

Jack Conway

It is to be expected that Jones would be the pick of the "[illegible]" boys. The Youngstown warrior is a seasoned campaigner and has proved his ability to defeat the best welterweights in the world.

Three times has Jones come to Boston. And three times has he left this city with the spoils that go to the victor.

NEWARK boxing promoters used a blackjack on their own interests when they perpetrated the Harry Wills-Floyd Johnson farce on the public. The New Jersey Boxing Commission was equally guilty in sanctioning such a match.

Floyd Johnson has been boxing for a couple of years. He has been [illegible] out by Jess Willard, Jack Renault, Jack Sharkey and other [illegible] eaders.

Wills only consented to meet Johnson because he knew the Iowan would not last a couple of rounds. Such ridiculous burlesque do the boxing game a grave injury. The promoters are merely administering a knockout blow to their own business.

The New Jersey Boxing Commission has been one of the chief offenders in allowing questionable matches. When a bout is too bad to be staged most anywhere else the sure-thing gang usually ferry it over to Jersey, and with the New Jersey commission acting as a sentinel pull their Jesse James stuff on the public.

The press of New York exposed the Wills-Johnson bout weeks before it took place, but the warning of the sport writers apparently was not entirely successful, as 8,000 persons paid close to $25,000 to see the fiasco.

JIMMY MEADE has arranged a very attractive boxing card for the Salem A. A. for Friday night. There will be three eight-round bouts and two sixes. In the eights Leo Barry of Peabody will battle Jerry Vitale of Beverly, Buddy Jenkins of Lunn will oppose Al Lewis of the South End, while Young Briscoe of Manchester will clash with Charley Costello of East Boston. In the sixes Teddy Reynolds of Salem will meet Tommy Lee of Salem, while Bobby O'Brien of Chelsea will [illegible] with Joe Cuppy of Boston.

Meade also announces that Al Delmont, former bantamweight star, will be associated with him in the future.

Moe and Joe, They Get the Dough---Sometimes

Moe didn't do any better upon the hilltop yesterday than Floyd Johnson did at Newark or Napoleon at Waterloo, for his choice Swinging quit as fast as she started and finished third.

Today is another day, however, and the puny plunger is going to one that Red Nicholls says is just as good as home. Cash in kick $1,959.57.

Hagen May Play Jones 72 Holes

Chicago, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Walter Hagen, professional golf champion, [illegible]ly announced he would be unable to compete in the Los Angeles open tournament in January, but that arrangements would soon be made, he hoped, for a 72 hole contest with Bobby Jones of Atlanta, national amateur champion. The former British and American open title holder has just returned from a hunting trip in the Canadian Northwest, where he scored close to par on the duck ponds [illegible] 60 ducks with 104 shells.

PIRATES DECIDE ON THEIR VICTORY EMBLEM

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28 (A. P.)—The Pittsburgh Nationals, world's baseball champions, have finally decided upon the emblem they want to mark them as titleholders. It will be a Pirate's head, in the form of a lapel button or a watch charm.

Since winning the highest honor in baseball, the Pirates, until today, were undecided as to the emblem. Some wanted a diamond ring, while others voted for watch charms and numerous other designs. The players were undecided when they left for their homes in various parts of the country, and the club management was forced to continue the emblem negotiations by mail.

Johnson Barred in New Jersey

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 28.—Floyd Johnson, once a top-notch, slashing heavyweight, was today barred from ever fighting again in New Jersey. This action was taken by the New Jersey State Boxing Commission which apologized to patrons of boxing for the disappointing bout Johnson put up against Harry Wills, the giant negro, Monday night. In this fight, Johnson was beaten down in the first round after a little more than two minutes of mauling.

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR ST. JOE'S SHOW

Interest in the weekly simon pure tournament of the St. Joseph's T. A. S., which will be held Saturday night at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, has been manifested on all sides and it is predicted that one of the largest entry lists of the season will be received.

For the reason that the heavyweight will return to action this week, the interest manifested is greater than ever.

SNOW HALTS HORSE RACING AT OHIO TRACK

Youngstown, O., Oct. 28—A terrific storm prevented the horse races from being held here today.

The heavy blizzard which struck this section overnight continues to rage at its utmost today. At noon it was officially announced that the meeting had been called off for the rest of the year as it will be impossible to race under such conditions.

FRANK GORE, HEYDLER'S ASSISTANT, DIES

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.)—Frank Gore, assistant secretary to John A. Heydler, president of the National League, for the last seven years, died today of spinal meningitis after a short illness. He was twenty-six years old.

BRIEF ITEMS OF COLLEGE TEAMS

Yale is being driven for what promises to be as tough a battle as she will have this year, the Army game Saturday. Several shifts have been made in the lineup, [illegible] Part for Stuhahn, Stuhahn for Webster and Noble for Cutler. The last named change is because of Cutler's in[j]ury which will keep him away from the Soldiers. Noble has shown up very well lately as has Foote at fullback. Captain [illegible] has a slightly twisted knee but will [illegible] by the end of the week. He ran through dummy practice in his position and was relieved by Reggie Root during scrimmage.

Army is working overtime for Yale, the three gridirons at the Point being flooded by searchlights in order to prolong the practice. With the exception of Gilbreth the soldier squad is in good condition and all the cripples are back in the lineup. The first team lines up as follows: Captain Baxter and Born, ends; Sprague and Saunders, tackles; Schmidt and Seeman, guards; Daly, centre; Harding, quarter; Wilson, Trapnell and Yeomans, backs.

Princeton will not scrimmage this week but will be put through stiff workouts in all departments of the game, especially at interference and position line play. Caldwell, Bob Darby and Rosengarten are still arguing over the tackle positions and all three are rated about on a par. Forest, who has been out most of the year, was sent in for Barrell at centre. His reappearance is a big addition to the line.

Dartmouth had a long workout which was continued "by the light of the moon." Coach Hawley and the other coaches discussed the Harvard game at length and were not slow in praising the things they liked about it. Sid Holbrook is driving a scrub squad with Brown plays which will be used against the varsity later in the week. It is still doubtful whether or not Captain Parker will be fit for action by Saturday.

Brown, a badly crippled organization, is in the throes of being rebuilt with only four men sure of their positions against Dartmouth. These are Keefer and Dixon, halfbacks, and Captain Stifler and Breda, ends. Robinson has a difficult problem in finding a centre, as his two best are out, and the third lacks experience.

Holy Cross' regular backs are being held back by Clee O'Donnell in order to save them for Bucknell. The Southern team is not underrated by the Purple mentor and he is unwilling to take chances on injuries. The first string line acted as shock troops for the second backfield in scrimmage.

Mass. Aggies have reached mid-season with every man in uniform and uninjured. The game with Amherst Saturday promises to be a real battle, in spite of the overwhelming nature of the Purple's victory over Wesleyan last week. Eddie Haertl has recovered from a shoulder hurt, and Black is back again pressing Tulenko for a guard berth.

AL KREUZ, PENN'S ACE, WILL NOT FACE ILLINI

New York, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Hopes of friends of Red Grange and Illinois for victory in their first eastern appearance on Saturday soared today with announcement that Pennsylvania's foremost backfield star probably would be out of the lineup.

Failure of Al Kreuz, triple-threat ace, to appear for practice yesterday marked the second blow in as many days given Pennsylvania. Paster Fields was eliminated by injuries Monday, and although it was believed at that time that Kreuz would be able to play Saturday with the aid of a brace, his leg yesterday was swollen to twice its normal size.

Howard Long, star pitcher of the baseball team, has taken Kreuz's position. Leith, Wascolonis and Douglass will complete the backfield, while the line will be the same as that which faced Chicago.

CONCORD HIGH GIRLS PLAY GARDNER TWICE

Miss Eleanor Clubb, manager of the Concord High School girls' field hockey eleven, has arranged two games with the Gardner High School girls' eleven. The first one will be played next Friday afternoon at Gardner, and the return contest will be staged on the Emerson playground court, Concord Centre, on Armistice Day, November 11. These two schools clash each Fall in field hockey.

HORAN-HORDER STILL LEAD IN 6-DAY RACE

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Harry Horan and Harris Horder, Australian-American team, were still leading in the International six-day bicycle race here today at the end of the [illegible] mile.

Australian Women Unable to Volley

By HELEN WILLS

Although the Australian women tennis players did not participate in the Eastern tennis tournaments in the United States, they played several team matches in this country—one with the Eastern players and one with the Californians. It was interesting to meet them on the court, especially since they had done so well against the foreign players.

Miss Elsa Boyd, Mrs. Sylvia Harper, the captain, Miss Daphne Akhurst and Miss Floris St. George made up the team, ranking in the order given. Although Miss Akhurst is the Australian champion, she played third position because the first two had defeated her. In the team match in California, I had the opportunity of playing against Miss Boyd and Mrs. Harper.

Mrs. Harper prefers the back court position and does not come to the net often, since she has no volleying shots. She relies mainly on her drive. Her forehand stroke is an excellent one, with good speed and direction. On her backhand she is not so consistent. Steadiness and accurate placing are Mrs. Harper's weapons and she uses them to advantage.

Miss Elsa Boyd is more of an all-round player. She plays with ease both at the net and in the back court. Her forehand drive is very strong and her backhand is not a defensive stroke. At the net her overhand stands out as a remarkably good shot, severe and well placed.

Miss Akhurst and Miss St. George are steady players, but are at their best in the back court. Because of their steadiness, they can hold their own against almost any opponent who does not come to the net. If their volleying were as good as their ground strokes, they would be even better players.

FISHER PLANS MORE CHANGES IN VARSITY

By TED LYNCH.

Having shifted Al Miller to the second varsity, Head Coach Bob Fisher is now about to make various other changes in the Harvard varsity.

The right tackle position was very weak against Dartmouth and a new man may be found in the position that Carl Lindner has held for two successive seasons.

From latest indications, Bob Taylor will give Lindner a battle for the berth. Taylor has shown real football fight in the scrimmages this week. He prepared at Middlesex School and will receive his degree in June.

Scrimmage has been an important factor in the work this week. The Crimson line is getting plenty of work trying to stop the scrub backs. The teams B and C backfields have backed up the line and also have been victims of more than ordinary abuse. A proof of this is the fact that Johnny Norberg, a team B back, is now the none too proud possessor of a pair of crutches. Norberg will not see varsity action for at least three weeks.

Joe Crosby, the best man on the Harvard offense; Madison Sayles, the end; Bydie Kilgour and Leo Daley have been kept out of these scuffles. The first three of the quartet are in good condition. Daley probably will not appear until the Princeton game, and then his playing will be of only short duration. The best thing to do with the former Andover captain would be to hold him out until the Yale game when his services would be of the greatest value.

When you realize that never before has a cigar achieved the popularity of White Owls — a million a day to supply the demand—you will readily understand why they are not to be judged by old standards of price and quality.

For never before has a cigar been able to adopt the policy upon which all successful industries have been built—that of accepting an unbelievably small profit per sale and depending upon huge volume for ultimate return.

White Owls were born of a determination to surpass all previous efforts in value giving. We determined to make a cigar of such quality and sell it at such a price that equal value could not be found anywhere.

And now, White Owls are being heralded as "greater value than ever." Quite natural, too, for tobacco from the finest crop in years has added an extra sweetness even to a cigar so good that improvement seemed impossible. Tasting better than ever—cool and mild—White Owls are, truly, big value.

An entirely new standard of cigar value

White Owls are not to be judged by old standards of price and taste. Tobacco from the finest crop in years has added a sweetness and mellowness that were never thought possible in a cigar selling at such a price.

BIG GAMES ON SCHOOL CARD THIS WEEK-END

EVERETT VS. MEDFORD TOPS LIST

Newton-Somerville Battle Also Promises to Provide Plenty of Action

By EDDIE DONDERO.

Nowadays picking the winners in schoolboy football circles is precarious, the sport menu calls for no dessert. While the youthful gridiron gladiators are slapping on the war paint, the attractions on the barred fields this week-end will be top-sawyers.

Eddie Dondero

Among the huge assortment of stellar attractions that head the program is two Suburban league conflicts. Written in big letters the Medford-Everett tilt at the rebuilt Everett High stadium, leads the pack with Newton and Somerville trying to crowd the headliners off the field.

Allie Dickersen's Garden City aggregation looks better each week. With Captain Tommy Gilligan barking the signals, Newton is one the leading contenders for the urban league championship. A fly offense coupled with a powerful line characterizes the Newton grid machine.

Nothing but a few bad breaks has denied Newton from sitting at the top of the heap. Bill Proctor, Hall, Guy Holbrook and Little will attempt to stage a well-known comeback next Saturday for Garden City delegation, which clash with Somerville at the Dilboy Field. It was nobody to athletes mentioned above beat Waltham only a few days ago.

After deep consideration Coach Dickerson shifted Gilligan from half back to the signal calling assignment, and the team functioned in winning fashion. With a verdict over Waltham, Newton visits Somerville as a dark horse would. The contestants are about evenly matched, with Charlie Dickerman's warriors having the slight edge.

Altogether different from the past few years, Somerville is a polished outfit. The gridsters follow the ball and everybody in in their fighting. It doesn't make any difference whether they are favorites or not. It's fight, fight, fight. That's the way Dickerman tutors them, hard and clean football all the time.

Medford looms up to be the coming champs and after an off-day last Saturday Coach Sampson's pupils should trim Everett. With Kirk and Manfre back in uniforms once more the Medfordites have one of the greatest teams in the history of the sport. On paper Medford looks unbeatable.

However, it might be interesting to note that George Brickley's team has yet to taste defeat, and it will give the Medford rivals the battle of their lives. It will be no cinch with Griffin, O'Hara, DeVeault and Convery wearing the Everett colors.

Garden City Athletes

PLAYING SECRETS OF Famous Football Stars

No. 11—Told by ANDREW GUSTAFSON, Halfback—Pittsburgh

To ED. THORP, Famous Player, Coach and Referee

Gustafson was the mainstay of the University of Pittsburgh's backfield last year and should be even more valuable this season. Gustafson is not particularly flashy, but is a consistent ground gainer and the type of player that coaches love on their teams.

The Pittsburgh star weighs 175 pounds, is six feet and has muscles of steel. His chief forte is the smashing. Picking up speed remarkably fast for a man his size, Gustafson runs from any kind of formation. He hits the line hard and with the force of a battering ram. Gustafson is good for three to five yards any time he gets his head and shoulders through the line because of his great strength and ability to keep his feet.

The most difficult task a coach has is to develop blocking interferers, players who are willing to sacrifice personal glory to clear the path for the ball carrier.

In the old days of Columbia's greatest on the gridiron, Harold Weeks was a perennial ground gainer mainly because Bill Morley had few equals as an interferer and "took out" opponents so effectively that Weeks was enabled to get away on his brilliant runs. Gustafson reminds me of Morley because of his skill of interfering for his runner.

On the defense Gustafson is a stone wall. He is seldom faked out of position.

SPEED DEMONS ARRIVE TODAY AT SALEM, N. H.

The first batch of automobile racing drivers will arrive at the Rockingham Motor Speedway this afternoon from Laurel, Md., where they competed in the 250-mile race on Monday of this week. By tomorrow they will again be speeding over the mile and one-quarter of beaded ribbon at Salem, N. H., tuning up for the championship classic to be staged there on Saturday of this week.

Of the seventeen riders who are to vie with one another in a test of speed and daring, there are at least two who will bear particular watching. These are Bob Mellenbrough and Phil Weymann of Montclair, N. J., who finished close across the line less than 10 yards behind. The race last Monday was not the first by any means wherein these sensational drivers matched their abilities as well as their machines in close competition.

Last July, at the same Laurel track, the finish was so close that Bob Mellenbrough was first to cross the finish line as apparent winner, but was disqualified for a foulance, and Phil Weymann given the prize instead. As a result considerable rivalry has sprung up between these daring speed demons, and each is determined that next time a race will settle for this time at least just who is the better of the two.

It may be said in favor of De Palma however, that he was forced to go to the mat nearly in the race because of trouble while Mc Donald had no reason to leave the track during the entire race. Mellenbrough has another strong point in his favor in that he has won the last two races which have been run in the east. His win at Altoona Pa. was a daring piece of driving and once again it was only after a thrilling contest all the way from start to finish.

Ralph Hepburn, a product of Somerville Mass., and who usually has been picked as the probable dark horse on Saturdays race showed that the speedsters are not far wrong by coming in fourth, not far behind Jackson.

By tomorrow all of the riders will have arrived and the remainder of the week will be devoted to practice spins around the marvelous new race course. It will not be at all surprising if a new world's record is set up for the 250-mile distance, as the Rockingham track is acknowledged by racing authorities to be the fastest in the world.

HARVARD PAPER FAVORS 'PRO' FOOTBALL

The Harvard Crimson, the college daily, this morning came out in favor of the encouragement of professional football, claiming that public interest in the sport would lessen the evils in the college game.

The editorial states:

"Complaints against the overemphasis upon college football have been increasing in volume during the past few years, and bid fair to increase as long as interest in football continues to exist into educational other legitimate interests of college.

Relatively small as the complaints are the complaints against overemphasis upon college baseball because amateur baseball has been kept in proper relation to the other sports of college life by the dwindling presence of professional baseball in the fall season no such antagonism has existed.

But if at last professional football teams have been to appear their growth should be encouraged rather than frowned upon. Especially when football teams legitimately professional come to occupy the position in the public mind and the same interest in the game which is now held by professional baseball will the college football team. The country be able to return to the comparative privacy of friendly competition which the college football enjoyed."

ROCQUE SLATED TO COACH B. C. SEXTET

By BILL CONSODINE

Boston College hockey enthusiasts are daily expecting the announcement from the office of graduate Manager Frank Reynolds that Fred Rocque has been selected to coach the Eagle sextet this Winter. Rocque is well remembered as the Hub for the championship teams that he produced at the B. A. A. a few years back.

The Eagles under Rocque last year were not defeated in a league game in the entire season. Their winning streak of twelve games was broken only in the second of the Dalton series.

It is the present to be assisted by Lou Hughes captain of the [illegible] Fred Nick Tobin [illegible] Gerald [illegible] are also looking forward to the services of several new men in the Freshman class.

Why not let 'em fight it out in the old pipe bowl?

If you want to see how Rough Cut tobacco stacks up against Granulated, then your old pipe bowl's the proper place to stage the battle... Just match a bowl of Granulated up against a bowl of Rough Cut... You'll see Rough Cut's cooler under fire, lasts longer and is much smoother-going... Yes sir, once you've seen Rough Cut in action you'll back Granger for the rest of your life.

There's a definite reason for that Rough Cut

Granulated tobaccos burn fast and hot because they're cut fine. But Granger burns slow and cool, because it's cut coarse. It just naturally makes the coolest, smoothest smoking you ever experienced.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT [illegible] DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

What is the latest news! Listen in over WNAC at 11.30 A. M. and at 1.30, 4.30 and 7.30 P. M., when the telegraphic news is broadcast direct from the Boston Evening American.

GORILLA STARS ON AIR OVER WNAC

The early evening and evening programs from Station WNAC tonight should prove interesting to many radio listeners. At 7:00 Desmond Gallagher and J. Harry Jenkins now playing in the "Gorilla" at the Plymouth Theatre have prepared a surprise for listeners. But we will let Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Jenkins put over the stunt themselves.

The radio debate which [illegible] 7.45 is a weekly event which is attracting much attention. This program is under the direction of the Boston Federation of Churches and Rev. E. Talmadge Root and S. R. [illegible] will debate "[illegible] United States [illegible] have the burden of debt bearing down on Europe."

At [illegible] Dr. George [illegible] and Olive Zeit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] The 9:00 p. m. program will be an attractive one furnished by [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] During the evening Alexander Bank and his orchestra will furnish a number of popular selections.

WBZ PROGRAM TONIGHT

The opening entertainment features of the Direct Mail Advertising Association, convening in Boston [illegible] week [illegible] house [illegible] WBZ [illegible] [illegible] D. M. A. A. [illegible] hours [illegible] WBZ [illegible] 8 o'clock.

An unusual program of vocal, dance, orchestral, and band music has been arranged for the evening and radio listeners who tune in the WBZ wave by Herbert Pratt, Billy Chamberlain, Roy Harlow, Harry Harding, Walter Anderson and Herbert Stevens who comprise the committee in charge of entertainment.

Radio Conditions Last Night

Receiving conditions continued to be poor. The static was of a continuous nature, and while not strong enough to interfere with local programs, did interfere with distant reception. The air seemed "dead" and the only station at any distance which appeared to be coming through with fair volume was WMBF at Miami Beach, Florida. Even the reproductive quality of this station was far from normal, due to noisy reception.

What Do You Like Best in Radio?

$50 Prize Contest for Radio Letters!

What do you like best in radio? And why do you like it?

The Boston Evening American wants to know what phase of broadcasting is most popular.

We are offering four prizes, of $20, $15, $10 and $5 each for the four best letters sent to us on this question.

Who wouldn't be willing to sit down for just a few moments and write such a letter? Even if you didn't win a prize, it would be worth while to express your views on such an interesting subject.

These letters must not be more than 100 words in length. If vaudeville [illegible] popular songs are your choice, please refer to it as such. In other words you are asked not to mention individuals or stations. Just simply the KIND of entertainment you prefer.

Now get busy with your pen and try for your share of the prize money—$20, $15, $10 and $5.

Which do you value most; dance music, concert music, women's household programs, lectures, news flashes, organ recitals, popular songs, band concerts or after-dinner speeches?

Big Brother

Big Brother Bob Emery, one of the best known New England radio personalities is busy these days on reportorial work which is a new line for Bob.

Various business houses and industrial organizations in and around Boston are furnishing the talent for the thirteen acts which make up the evening's program. In addition to musical numbers, dances are scheduled on the program, and the unusual costumes and stage effects will be described by Colonel Carroll Swan, who will act as official announcer for the evening for station WBZ.

NEW FEATURE OVER WEEI

WEEI is presenting a new program direct from New York on Thursday night at 9:00 o'clock—a combination program, when Louis Katzman and his Ambassadors will vie with the Dixie Jubilee Singers during an hour's program.

Louis Katzman is said to be the originator of Symphono Jazz. He is one of the best known musical arrangers on Broadway, having arranged scores for Lopez, Whiteman and other prominent New York orchestra leaders. His Ambassadors are a phonograph recording organization who feature his arrangements.

The Dixie Jubilee Singers are composed of eight colored singers, five men and three women, whose specialties are the animated jubilee songs of the South, humorous male quartet selections, and crooning Southern melodies, as well as spirituals.

Election Returns Over WNAC

Arrangements have just been completed by Station WNAC to broadcast on the night of November 3rd, the returns of the City election for the Mayor of Boston. As the returns come in they will be broadcast so those citizens of Boston who are interested in this contest will know the result in their own homes.

In a contest of this kind it is often a huge joke to count ballots, but WNAC is prepared to spend all night if necessary to provide the election result for its listeners. There will be plenty of entertainment between returns.

Ten Kitchens

Ten Heinz Ketchup Kitchens are located throughout the country where soil and climate combine to produce the best. Here millions of baskets of carefully selected, sun-ripened tomatoes are converted, while still garden-fresh, into delicious Heinz Tomato Ketchup. Every bottle has the natural color and flavor of the tomato. Every taste calls for another. Never be without it.

WGY WILL USE HORIZONTAL WAVES

Tests to establish the value of horizontal radiation on broadcast wavelengths will be made from the radio developmental laboratory of the General Electric Company, near Schenectady, Monday and Tuesday nights, November 2 and 3, according to an announcement by C. J. Young, of the radio engineering department of that company.

Both tests will be conducted on super-power, 50 kilowatts, through WGY, using the normal wave-length of that station, which is 379.5 meters. The listener will have an opportunity to compare reception on both horizontal and vertical radiation on the same night.

The schedule provides for a half hour period of broadcast entertainment on the horizontal antenna from 12 to 12 30 midnight, Monday and Tuesday and from 12:45 to 1:15 on the vertical antenna, regularly used for super-power transmission. A period of fifteen minutes is required to change connections from one antenna system to the other.

Much has been written during the past few months on horizontal radiation and there has been considerable speculation as to the advantages which this form of transmission holds. Practically all, if not all, experimental work with horizontal waves has been carried on with the very high frequencies of the shorter wavelengths, and much valuable data has been collected.

Reports on short wavelength demonstrations were necessarily few because of the comparatively small number of short wave sets in use. It is also pointed out that results on higher wavelengths may be directly opposed to the observations made on wavelengths from 50 to 150 meters.

THE SHEPARD STORES

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE AFTERNOON TEA.

AFTERNOON tea is no longer the prerogative of the "idle rich." I am so glad that this pretty custom has become more popular with even the busiest housewives. It does make such a refreshing break three-quarters of the way through a busy day to stop and freshen up again and to share a sandwich and cup of fragrant tea with a neighbor or two.

Best of all, afternoon tea is one of the simplest and least expensive forms of entertainment and also one of the most attractive. It may be served in the living room or the sun parlor or in fact any place except the dining room. The tea making equipment is arranged on a tray placed on a table. The hostess makes the tea and pours it herself and, of course, must see that her equipment is complete. Tea kettle for boiling water and alcohol lamp, box of matches, pretty tea caddy and tea ball are necessities. The tea ball is used when only a few cups of tea are to be made, but if you have several guests, you will need a tea pot. Cut sugar is used—sometimes rubbed on orange or lemon peel to add a delightful bit of flavor to the tea—or you can use the rock crystal sugar that comes especially for afternoon tea. Of course, you will need a pitcher of cream, a small dish of sliced lemon, cups and saucers with the spoons on the saucers, or the new sandwich sets with a tiny lustre tray with an indentation for the cup. Tea plates and tea napkins should be in readiness on the table. Hot water is brought in in the tea kettle and placed over the alcohol lamp and as soon as it boils the tea is quickly prepared. Thin plain bread and butter sandwiches or simple sandwiches, such as olive, nut or cream cheese, should be served and also small cakes or sweet crackers. Do not have anything elaborate. Afternoon tea isn't supposed to be a meal; just an in-between bite and an opportunity for a pleasant rest. A small muffin stand with three or four shelves is a great assistance in passing sandwiches and cakes at an informal afternoon tea.

Of course, in Summer iced tea, iced chocolate or punch is more acceptable than hot tea, and out-of-door service is preferable to indoor. The entire tea service may be arranged on the tea wagon and wheeled wherever you wish with a little trouble.

Since sandwiches are the most important item in the afternoon tea, I am going to give you a few suggestions for fillings:

Recipe No. 1711

NUT SANDWICHES.

Mix 1 cup each of chopped peanuts and walnuts with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise dressing. Spread between buttered slices of brown bread.

And here is a cheese and green pepper sandwich that is extremely good:

Recipe No. 1712

CHEESE AND GREEN PEPPER SANDWICHES.

Salt.
Slices of bread.

Remove the seeds and white pith and pass the peppers through a meat chopper with the cheese, season to taste, and mix smoothly. The juice from the peppers will moisten the cheese sufficiently for it to spread easily. Have the bread cut rather thicker than usual for sandwiches. Spread the cheese paste rather thickly on one slice of bread and cover with another; press together firmly and toast over a hot fire. Cut into strips and tuck between the folds of a napkin to keep them hot.

And the Boston sandwiches:

Recipe No. 1713

BOSTON SANDWICHES.

Slices of thinly cut Boston brown bread.
3 rolls Neufchatel cheese.
6 stoned olives.
½ cup peanuts.
1 teaspoon lemon juice.
2 tablespoons cream.
Salt and pepper.

Mash the cheese smoothly, add the olives chopped small, the peanuts passed through a meat chopper (peanut butter may be substituted) the lemon juice, cream and seasoning. Spread thickly on the brown bread and press two slices together.

For the sweet part of the tea, I am sure your guest will enjoy—

Recipe No. 1714

PECAN STICKS.

½ cup butter.
2-3 cup sugar.
2 eggs.
½ cup milk.
1 cup shelled pecan nuts.
1½ cups flour.
½ level teaspoon salt.
2 level teaspoons baking powder.

Beat the butter and sugar to a cream, add the eggs well beaten, the milk and nuts, and then the flour, salt and baking powder sifted together. Beat thoroughly, and bake in greased finger roll pans. When cold cover the tops with a white frosting into which a few extra nuts have been stirred.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color With Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

said, after he had stowed the money away in his pocketbook, "and your courier having started last night, you will probably see the first of the articles in Thursday's Times. By the way," he went on casually, "what are you doing about young Imrey and the girl?"

"What do you mean by that? What should I be doing with them?"

"Well, when these artistes appear——"

"I send them packing. I never go back on my word," Naniescu said. "...RgO.

"It would not pay you to do that in this case, my friend. Lady Tarrington has your written promise, and she would raise hell if you played her false. But I wasn't thinking of that. I only wished to warn you to keep an eye on those two young firebrands."

"Oh," Naniescu retorted, with a shrug, "once I have them out of the country they can do what they like."

"That is so, but you are sending Count and Countess Imrey out of the country, aren't you?"

"What makes you say that?"

"Well, you paid Blakeney for the articles with the title deeds of Kis-Imre, didn't you?"

"How did you know that?"

"I don't," Number Ten replied dryly. "I guessed, and you gave yourself away."

"Well, and if I did—what is it to you?"

"Nothing, my friend. Nothing. I come back to my original warning. Keep a close eye on young Imrey and Anna Heves, and above all keep a close eye on Blakeney. He may be playing a double game, you know."

"I thought of that," Naniescu broke in curtly, "so I have had Imrey and the Heves girl transferred to Sot."

"But why Sot?"

"We have commandeered a chateau there, which we use as a prison for political offenders. We try them by a military tribunal which holds its sitting at Sot, and if an execution is imperative—well, it is done without any fuss."

"What News?"

"I see. Well," Number Ten went on, as he rose to take his leave, "I need not detain you any longer."

"Oh, go to the devil!" Naniescu exclaimed, half in rage and half in laughter.

Rosemary had never before welcomed her husband so eagerly as she did that afternoon.

"What news?" she cried when he had brought the car to a standstill.

"Very vague, I am afraid," he replied. "And some of it a mere conjecture."

"Tell me."

"To begin with, young Imrey and Anna Heves have been transferred to Sot. It seems that there is a chateau there, used as a prison for political offenders."

"Who told you that?"

"Naniescu. I saw him for a moment. He was very busily engaged with the Minister for Home Affairs who was over from Bucharest, so he could only give me a few minutes."

"Had he seen Elsa?"

"No. But she had applied for permission to see Philip and Anna, and he gave the permission."

"Even so," Rosemary mused, "she would be back by now, or else she would have wired."

Jaspar appeared to hesitate for a moment or two, and then he said: "I don't think that she has been allowed to do either."

"Why not?"

"It is mere surmise, my dear," Jasper went on quietly, "but one thing Naniescu did tell me, and that was that he had on behalf of his government definitely made over the Kis-Imre estate to Peter Blakeney."

Rosemary made no response; indeed, it might be thought that she had not heard, for the next question which she put to Jasper appeared irrelevant.

"Does the midnight express stop at Sot?"

"It does," Jasper replied.

"Then I can see Elsa there. I am sure that is where she is."

"Just Near to You"

"You still wish to come with me tonight?" she asked her husband.

"Why, of course."

"You are not too tired after all this running about?"

"I?" he exclaimed with a laugh. "Tired? When it is a question of being near you?"

He tried to capture her wrist, but she evaded him and ran up the stairs.

It was just before dinner that the culminating tragedy occurred. Rosemary was in her room, when she heard commotion ensuing from the hall—harsh, peremptory voices, a word or two from Anton, and then Jasper's voice raised loud as if in protest. She opened her door, and to her horror saw a squad of soldiers in the hall, and between them an officer, and a man in civilian clothes who had an official looking paper in his hand and was apparently explaining something to Jasper.

"I regret, my lord, but these are my orders," the man was saying, "and I cannot enter into any discussion with you."

Rosemary had run downstairs.

"What is it, Jasper?" she asked quickly.

"An order of eviction," Jasper replied curtly, "against that wretched Maturin."

"Whatever does that mean?"

"That he must quit this place within twenty-four hours."

"Impossible!" she exclaimed hotly. She turned to the officer and the civilian who had brought this monstrous order.

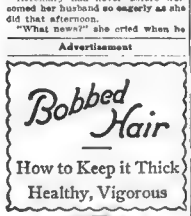
Bobbed Hair

How to Keep it Thick Healthy, Vigorous



The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, also burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

Finding a Love Cure

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE GIRL WHO SIGHS FOR THE MOON, WISHING LOVE IN VAIN.
"Forget Yourself," Says Beatrice Fairfax; "Rejoice When He Falls in Love With a Girl Who Can Make Him Happy, Whether or Not You Are That Girl."

WE like being advised to do what we want to do and intend doing anyway. Also, knowing perfectly well the wise course of action we sometimes seek counsel in hope of finding a pleasanter, easier way out of our difficulty than that conscience dictates. Then, too, confiding a trouble to one who unintentionally stands to lighten its burden. So there are various motives for asking advice when problems arise. Hopeful has been struggling for years with her love problem and she simply can't find the solution. Her letter shows she is brave, brightly accepting the worst of it.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Hopeful. "I'm twenty-six and for ten years have been employed in the office of a large plant. Just before I started working there I met a boy who eventually came to work at the same place. I have doubted him since I first knew him.

"He is apparently unaware of this although almost every one else surmises that I have a crush on him.

"I am 'fair to look at' and dress as well as the other girls in the place. This is not a conceited opinion of myself. But I like the people I work with and always try to be thoughtful and kind to everyone from the president to the office sweeper. And they in turn reward me with their smiles.

"The young man in question is my age. He is rather handsome, but not conceited. He's happy go lucky, care free and very popular—most especially with girls.

"We do not walk home together but we often meet. When we [illegible] he always [illegible] and [illegible] I'm a [illegible] girl—in fact, he says I'm the nicest girl at the plant who is single.

"He confides all his little secrets to me and tells me his ambitions as he would his mother. He declares over and over that he will never marry. He has taken me out only a few times during all these years.

"I've asked about him. I've gone about a bit, trying to find some one who will take him off my mind. But I soon lose interest and dream of this young man, praying that he will love me. Each day that passes without a sign that he is 'failing for me' is another day lost. I've several times had fine prospects. But, of course, I'd never consider any one else, loving him as I do.

"I realize I'm not getting younger or better looking. I'm sure I'm not marry before he does. And if he marries some one else I'll just die. It isn't his fault that I love him for he hasn't given me a ray of hope.

"If you [illegible] me to forget him will you please give me a motive? Say to me, 'Forget him, or—' And I'll try with all my might to do whatever you say.

"I've invited him to parties on which to see him get a crush on another girl and occasionally he has accepted. [illegible] myself in this matter. Refuse when he calls [illegible] with a girl who makes him happy whether or not you are that girl. Anything less than this is acting [illegible] love.

"HOPEFUL."

[illegible] after reading this chatter I'll appreciate it very much.

[illegible] to miss sacrifices for the [illegible] to get him to [illegible] for you to make him love you. Yet he's one [illegible] you will not [illegible] you [illegible] yourself [illegible] business to miss sacrifices for the [illegible] to get him to [illegible] for you to make him love you. Yet he's one [illegible] you will not [illegible] you [illegible] yourself [illegible] or hope.

"If you [illegible] me to forget him will you please give me a motive? Say to me, 'Forget him, or—' And I'll try with all my might to do whatever you say.

Are you a [illegible] Beatrice Fairfax, will help you. Address her in care of this paper and inclose a stamped envelope for reply.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

CONDUCTED UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN OF ROSEMARY

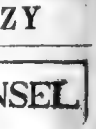
Kay Clarke
Queen of Rosemary

I PARTICULARLY remember one of my birthdays.

I had gone to a place in Transylvania where there is a delicious salt lake. The water is quite warm, and so dense the salt in it that it is almost impossible to sink.

People suffering from rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica go there and it cures them miraculously. I go because I love the swimming, the peace, the simplicity of the place.

An old family servant who has a cottage there lets it to me, and it is his proudest joy to arrange his modest dwelling as much as possible according to my taste.



Generally I go there quite simply with my little daughter, Ileana, and her friends, and with as small a following as possible, so as to lead a r[illegible] simple l[illegible]fe.

Being far from the ordinary officiality, the simple p[illegible] who live there combine to celebrate the happy occasion angrily and fittingly as possible.

Early in the morning I heard Ileana and her little f[illegible] slip out of bed with many whisperings, and steal off to kitchen to make the birthday cake!

The old servant and his wife had put a table in the hall and each servant had brought some little gift—a j[illegible] jam, a flower-pot with a scarlet geranium, some painted a small piece of embroidery.

My chauffeur had discovered a small garden where lilies grew, and knowing my love for flowers, had brought me an enormous flaming bunch. Even the old Hungarian charwoman, not wanting to come empty-handed, offered me a bright red kerchief woven on her cottage loom.

When I reached the lake, my bathing hut had been [illegible] ated with every wild flower in the place, and on entering it, I heard from somewhere a phonograph which began playing "Ave Maria" because the national anthem side was cracked! And how I laughed and loved it!

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: While visiting, I was introduced to a young man at a friend's home. As I was first to take leave, will you kindly tell me what I should have said in the way of acknowledging the introduction?

(2) While at a party, I was introduced to a number of people at a time. Should the person with the hostess? As I found this manner of introduction rather embarrassing would very much appreciate to know if there is a more graceful manner of being introduced. (3) G.

WILL you permit me to correct the wording of your question? One of the first things to remember about introductions is that the person is presented to the lady. Therefore your question should read: "A young man was presented to me."

In acknowledging an introduction, the phrase, "How do you do?" is the accepted thing to say. The one who leaves first, whether the lady or gentleman, may say, if he or she wishes, "Good by. I am very glad to have met you." And, if especially enthusiastic to be registered, this addition may be made: "I hope that I am to see you again very soon."

(2) I agree with you that it is very embarrassing to be led around the room and introduced in the manner that you describe. It is never good form for a hostess to do this. Instead, she should introduce you to some of the friends standing near her when you arrive, and not attempt to introduce each guest to everybody in the room. The few

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson

FOR two years Earl Terry had wanted a divorce, but his wife wouldn't give him one.

"I can't," she cried. "Don't you see it is my duty not to?"

"Why is it your duty?"

"Because I must protect him. He doesn't really know his own mind. He would never have turned against me of his own accord. His mother and sister have made him."

"That's quibbling. His mother and sister may have influenced him, but no one can MAKE a man leave a wife he really desires. One is trying to protect your own pride by pretending that he is being forced to do something he doesn't want to do."

"But if I DO give him up he'll marry that Lyle woman. Everyone knows what she is. She has been divorced once already and is just looking for a meal ticket. She'd wreck Earl's life—"

"But it's HIS life. If he's bent on making a fool experiment with it, that's HIS business, not yours."

"Why isn't it my business? Isn't it my duty as a wife to keep him from hurting himself?"

Not Real Wife

"It is NOT. Is the first place, Earl doesn't recognize you as his wife, save in name. He feels that you stopped being spiritually his wife the day you began to hopelessly dissagree."

"But I think that marriage lasts forever"

"You've a perfect right to think so, but you've no right to try to force the other fellow to agree with you. Earl doesn't think that marriage lasts forever—he does think that your marriage has proved a failure—he does not want to marry again. That's his right. You don't believe in remarriage? Then don't remarry. That's your right. But you can't make your right his right."

"You talk as if husbands and wives didn't belong to each other at all."

"They don't. Marriage means partnership—not possession. You're trying to possess Earl. You're trying to do for him what only God has a right to do for him. You're trying to do his growing for him."

"No, I'm not. I'm just trying to keep him from being hurt."

Make Marriage Honest

"It isn't love for him you're feeling now. It's a stubborn determination to hold on to something you think is yours and to boss that possession. That isn't love. That's selfish domination. It's as cruel as a straight jacket and deadly to growth. It's profanity to call that love. If you loved Earl, you'd let him go out to meet his own destiny just like a good mother lets her child go out to meet life."

"You mean we DON'T do that in marriage. We CAN do it. And we SHOULD do it. If you'd had that attitude toward Earl in the first place you never would have lost him. From the very first you've tried to manage him and mold him into your ideal. You haven't been noisy about it, but the result has been just as bad. Every healthy, proud instinct has risen in revolt against it. He may come an awful cropper, now that he has broken away, but at least he'll feel that he is his own master—and there's the secret of many broken marriages. We don't give the other fellow his chance to live his life in his own way. It's bound to fail. You can't buck LIFE."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THEY have come down to us through dusty years still hinting of the graces of other days, still touched with romance of forgotten tears and bright loveliness of other ways. This faded chair, this bit of yellowed lace, this gold-framed ringlet from a baby's head, are lights along dim regions where we trace by paths obscure the way of that long fled. This piece of china and this cobweb veil have outlived the hands that held them dear but by such trifles, colorful and frail, old days are quickened and the past draws near. They give us glimpses for a little while of things no history's pages ever show, of brave men's dreams, of ancient beauty, wife and looks of lovers in the long ago.

MAKING OF A HUSBAND

By Anne Lisle

NOW I must run along with my candle. I've stayed shockingly long for one who called as a delivery boy. Good night, new tenant. Good night, Miss Harrison."

It was not until the door slammed on our visitor that I realized he had been calling Jeanie Miss Harrison. She must have given him the impression that was her name. But why?

No sooner was our visiting neighbor, Nicholas Perry, safely out of the way than I turned on Jeanie with something which I have to acknowledge was dangerously like a pounce.

"He called you 'Miss Harrison,'" I said, accusingly.

Jeanie was humming a little tune under her breath, and to add to the oddity of this proceeding came her airs.

"What of it?"

"Did you tell him you were Miss Harrison?" I asked, breathless with astonishment at her temerity.

"I told him I was Mr. Harrison's sister," Jeanie answered.

"And let him conclude you single? Why?"

"What concern is it of a casual visitor's whether or not I am married?" asked Jeanie, "Really, Anne, I'm amazed at your giving a natural blunder, such as the man made, so much weight. He doesn't seem as important to me as you're making him out."

And with that I had to be content. But I wasn't. I was puzzled and a little shocked by Jeanie's manner. And my puzzlement didn't decrease when Mr. Perry arrived bright and early the next morning with a large pat of fresh butter, which he explained was the product of his dairy and with which he thanked some of his own biscuits would go most excellently.

"Now you've brought the 'makings' you ought to stay to breakfast," laughed Jeanie.

"Regular boarder stuff!" replied Mr. Perry with a gaiety which matched hers perfectly. "I really ought to take a few meals at home. Arlette will be hurt."

"Is she your best friend?" Jeanie cried archly but tensely.

"She's my model," replied the artist earnestly. "My home is a little cottage, the other side of my shack and manages me and the farm, and the world in general. She permits Arlette to rest in bed and breakfasts and lunches. But she scorns the child's really excellent housekeeping and backs up Hester Jay on the idea that models shouldn't soil their lily fingers with housework."

"A very important person, this Arlette!" asked Virginia.

"A very important person that Mrs. Cruikshank," answered Nicholas Perry.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE NOBILITY OF BEATRICE

By Evangeline Weir

"I heard that she was engaged to some one for a short time, but she denied it when I repeated it to her," Clare said, watching his face.

SINCE AGE OF FIVE.

"It is precisely what would happen with a temper like hers."

"Beatrice has been my friend since I was five years old. She is just a year my senior," Clare explained.

"And took advantage of the extra year, I venture to say."

"She fought a boy once who struck me."

"Then struck you herself in a fit of temper," he added.

Clare let it rest, but the old suspicion returned one day when she was in Beatrice's room helping her sort over a stack of old letters and cards for the address of a mutual friend. On her wedding trip south, Clare meant to look her up. One letter slipped out from a case that Beatrice held in her hand, and she quickly stooped and caught it up with an explanation that aroused Clare's suspicion. During the second that it lay at her feet, she thought she recognized the writing.

"Bee" she said. "Bee!"

Beatrice was slowly and calmly tearing the letter into bits.

"It is from the man to whom I was once engaged—for two weeks. He did not like my temper—"

"You care for him, Bee!" Clare said, with a little catch of pain in her voice. "I cannot be happy at your expense."

"My expense! What part have you in my broken romance?" she asked warmly.

"It was — it was — I know it was——"

QUITE ORDINARY

"Well?" a flush of anger on her cheeks. "Really, Clare," as she did not answer, "do you mean that I was engaged to Fred?" Then she laughed a little scornfully. "You may imagine him faultless, but he appears quite ordinary to me. The man I was engaged to had virtues and beauty such as Fred never possessed. He was a kind of glorified Knight that rode into my life, then out forever. I loved him! I loved him as only a woman with a temper like mine can love," she said with a kind of passionate fury.

"I am so glad!" Clare said.

"Now, you little cat," Beatrice said fondly, with her hand stroking Clare's soft hair. "Go home and purr to your heart's content. Cuddle down beside Fred and tell him that I do not think he is worthy of you. That if he ever speaks of another woman he will break your heart. You are such a jealous little puss."

When Clare told her future husband he merely said:

"Brave little Beatrice!"

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips" Milk of Magnesia in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore.

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

ONE reason why the infection that you call a "cold" is called a "cold" is the fact that it occurs more frequently, but far from exclusively, in cool or cold weather.

There are two reasons for the greater prevalence of colds in cold weather:

The first is that the germs that causes colds—such as the influenza germ and the pneumonia germ, belonging to the group of organisms called streptococci—multiply with greater activity at low temperatures.

That simply means that your White Guard has manned the ramparts and crowded the trenches to repel the invasion—the ramparts being the under layer of the mucous membrane and the trenches being the little blood vessels, called capillaries.

That's the battle line. Invading germs are literally consumed. The poisons that they manufacture are largely burned up right then and there. But these poisons are more elusive than the germs themselves, and some of them—and, indeed, some of the germs—slip by the defenders.

Then the warfare is taken up by the rear guard in your general blood stream, and the fires of extermination are lighted all over your system.

That means fever, the friendly invaluable fever that is saving your life.

Presently it subsides. The battle is over. Your White Guard has won the day. Then you sweat. That simply means that the carcasses of dead germs and the ashes from the fire of conflict, comprising the general debris of the battle, are being washed out through your sewer system.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By Helen Rowland.

VERILY, my Daughter, a Prima Donna is capricious and a motorcar is full of surprises—but WHO is so inconsistent as a man-in-love?

Behold, when his lips are full of praises and promises and pet-names, he, peradventure, meaneth nothing.

But when he sitteth apart and is SILENT, he meaneth everything.

So long as thou takest him lightly and regardest him as a playmate, he taketh thee seriously and pursueth thee ardently.

But when he suspecteth thee of falling in love with him, he feeleth an affright and barricadeth himself behind a curtain of caution.

Helen Rowland

When thou scorneth him and maueth him to suffer, he is humbles than a stage footman. But when thou art responsive and tender, he is colder than restaurant ices and more coy than a wild deer.

He calleth thee his "Guiding Star" and assureth thee that thou art the One Intelligent and Interesting Woman in a world full of dimwits.

Yet, in the next breath, he mocketh at thine opinions, laugheth at thy reasoning, and answereth thine arguments with baby-talk and kisses.

He admireth the curve of thy chin and adoreth the dimple in thy cheek and the shape of thy finger-nails. Yet the books which thou readest are always "piffle," the men whom thou likest are always "dubs," the plays which thou enjoyest are always "trash," and thy women friends are all "prunes" or "dumbells."

How then shall any woman make a man HAPPY?

For, verily, verily, in all those things which are of no moment, he is more autocratic than a headwaiter, and more peevish than a babe.

Yet, in all those matters which affects his heart and his life, he layeth down, a sacrificial martyr, upon the altar of a woman's whim!

SELAH.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

IF you look in your geography, you will find the island of Sumatra, where Bunny, Bobby and I had a strange experience and about which I am going to tell you.

Sumatra is a big island about a thousand miles long and is right near the Malay Peninsula and the island of Java. There they grow coffee—like Java—and rice and pepper and sugar, too. And there are great big mountains with volcanoes in them besides many kinds of ore.

But, Bunny, Bobby and I were not interested in the minerals and vegetables. You know that. We were interested in the animals. So we asked a Dutchman—because Holland controls the island of Sumatra and was settled by the Dutch—which was the best place to see wild animals and he told us back in a valley and told us how to get there.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston Evening American.

"Tell him all you know; it won't take long."

"I'll tell him all we both know; it won't take any longer."

GEORGE H. REYNOLDS,
16 Boylston St., Jamaica Plain.

So we got a flivver and went way back into the country, camping out at night and then made the fire to cook our supper.

We ate our supper and were just about ready to turn in when through the woods came a cry that would break your heart to hear.

"It is not a child, I'm certain," declared the little rabbit, very positively.

"I think we ought to make sure, though," I ventured. "Whatever it is, it is surely in distress. I wonder if we could find it tonight. It is getting pretty dark and this wood is black. So we gave it up.

We started through the thick bush toward the walls which were now increasing, but had to give it up. We could not make our way in the inky blackness of that jungle, and besides we were in great danger of getting lost and not finding our way.

"First thing in the morning we'll make another attempt," I said as we rolled ourselves in our blankets and said "good night."

Several times I awoke in the night and off in the distance heard the pitiful cries which we had heard in the evening, and I determined to give aid to the sufferer, no matter what we had to do.

At dawn I awoke, turned over and looked at Bobby, who was still asleep. Then I felt for Bunny, who always sleeps in my blanket. You know I call him my hot water bag. He is better than any I ever bought at a drug store, because he retains his heat.

But Bunny was not there. In a moment, however, in the dim light of the early dawn I saw his two ears coming from the thicket.

"Get up and come quietly, Foxy Grandpa," he whispered. "I'll show it to you."

I hurriedly got up and called Bobby and through the dark woods we stalked. Then under a tree Bunny stopped us and at that very moment came the cry we heard in the night. It was up in the tree above our heads.

I looked up. There was a kind of platform built of branches and grass and on that nest—for it was a nest—were a mother orang-outang and her baby. It was the baby which cried, exactly like a child.

"I hate to say, I told you so," whispered Bunny to Bobby, "but I will admit that would fool anyone."

UNITED DRUG IS CHAIN STORE LEADER

In a special letter on United Drug Co., after citing the fact that Richardson, Hill & Co. have been advising for years the purchase of Drug securities, the Boston brokers point out that this company is today (1) the largest manufacturer of medicinal goods and druggist sundries in the world; (2) as the sole owner of Liggett stores in the United States and Canada and Boots, Ltd. in Great Britain by far the largest chain store operator in its line and one of the very large chain store operators of the world in any line; (3) as a wholesaler of drugs and other merchandise sold in drug stores in the unique position of having 10,000 customers in the well-known Rexall Stores tied by sympathy and self interest through many years of association as stockholding investors and, so, co-partners in the success of the parent company.

The letter declares: "We have consistently advised the purchase of these stocks for permanent investment and many times have advised the purchase of United Drug common for short time appreciation when we have felt that temporarily it was selling below general market values or some special conditions surrounding the company itself had not at the time been reflected in current market prices.

"United Drug common on Saturday, October 24, 1925, closed at 147, the highest price at which it has sold in the past five years and yet, in our opinion, it is perhaps further behind current market prices than it has ever been since the present company was formed in 1916.

"Chain store stocks, as a whole, sell on a different basis than railroad stocks, manufacturing companies, public service corporations, mining stocks and other listed securities and we think rightly so.

"This is because chain store operations have already demonstrated that they can create (because of ability to come directly in contact with the buying public) growth in sales and profits faster than other companies and with an infinitely smaller investment of new capital per dollar of new sales created than is necessary in other lines of business.

SKIN DISEASE

THE VALUE OF THE MERCURY-QUARTZ LAMP—ULTRA VIOLET RAY is demonstrated quickly and surely in the treatment of skin diseases, notably Eczema. Patients who consent to publish their relief from skin diseases deserve much praise for the reason that they are naturally sensitive to publicity and only permit such publications from their desire to help others who suffer from this embarrassing malady. MRS. MAUDE GUTTRO, 48 PRINCETON ST., SOMERVILLE, MASS., SAYS: "I had suffered from Eczema on my face for six years. I had tried various remedies prescribed by doctors and sold in drug stores, which gave me only temporary relief. When I read of the new Light Treatment I was treated by Dr. Walsh. The benefit was apparent at once. The trouble disappeared quickly and, I hope, permanently."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY and MERCURY-QUARTZ LIGHT TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE.

No matter what your disease may be, remember that Dr. Walsh gives

Who Owns the Big Feet?

How Far Up Does the Money Go?

The Little Men are known and sometimes they go to jail. But the Big Men, the owners of the feet, who are they?

The story of modern bribery and corruption is admirably told in this picture which we take from the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Thanks to bootlegging and drug peddling, established on a basis of hundreds of millions annually, since prohibition came in, bribery, graft, protected by official rottenness, have actually become a national industry.

The man that allows whiskey to go out from the warehouse gets so much a case.

The truckman that hauls it gets so much a case. Only fifty cents a case perhaps, but that lets him make fifty dollars a day instead of the old five dollars a day.

The wholesale bootlegger peddles it out to the retail bootleggers at a profit of thirty or forty dollars a case.

And the retail bootlegger, dealing directly with the eminently respectable customer, with many lies about old "pre-war liquor from the cellar of a dear friend gone to Europe," peddles the stuff at a profit of twenty to fifty dollars a case more.

Tens of millions and hundreds of millions are involved every year in the bootleg traffic and other millions in the traffic even more deadly, the traffic in drugs.

Mr. Murphy's picture shows you the process of "handing up the graft."

When the truck driver is stopped he pays something to the man that stops him.

The next man up pays something more to somebody else.

The next man pays more.

And those that get the graft, on the way up, hand along part of it to others still higher. Who gets it in the end?

Who owns the Big Feet in the back of the picture, into whose pockets and bank account the bootleg and drug money pours in from all over the nation?

You will never know the answer to that question.

Once in a while the little man gets caught and gets put in jail. They may call him "The Bootleg King." He is nothing in reality but a bootleg pigmy. Somebody much bigger, more powerful than he is gives him the "right to operate." But he doesn't squeal, takes his "medicine," comes out and bootlegs again. What will the people do about this? They will do exactly nothing.

In a city cellar, or a barn in the woods, a man can change fifty cents' worth of corn into fifty dollars' worth of whiskey, an apparently respectable passenger from Europe can bring concealed about him a thousand dollars' worth of drugs which he will retail for twenty thousand dollars.

How do you expect to stop that?

You are not going to stop it, unfortunately, no matter how sincere the effort, no matter how great the sincerity or integrity of our most important officials.

The little man will get his. The man next to him will get his. The big man beyond the pair of big feet, the man at whose existence you only guess, he gets the big dough.

That's what we are in for. The problem is how to solve the difficulty.

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, supposed to be an intelligent, wise American, and to understand the country, said the only way to discourage whiskey, which, according to him, killed one-half the men and ruined their families, was to encourage light wine and beer. He wrote to the Legislature of Virginia, urging them to encourage brewers and demanded that Government take the tax from light wine. He believed that if America, like Europe, would allow working men and others to have comparatively harmless light wines and beers, they would not insist on poisoning themselves with deadly whiskey or deadlier drugs.

But that is part of ancient history. Prohibition is here, it is in the Constitution. Honest officials from the President down are bound by oath of office to enforce and uphold the Constitution.

The question is, things being as they are, what can we do about it?

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

HUNTING has become so popular this season that even the iron deer on your front lawn isn't safe any more.

ONE New York sportsman went hunting on Fifth avenue and shot both the stone lions in front of the New York public library.

HE had one cartridge left so he went over to a phonograph store and killed the plaster of paris dog that was listening to his master's voice.

ANOTHER fellow stood at Times square and shot the birds off of all the women's hats.

HE killed every pigeon on Columbus circle. He thought they were ducks.

HE was shooting at everything that had feathers, including Pomeranians.

HE walked up to one dame and shot a fur coat right off her back.

HE was using his wife's Pekinese for a hunting dog.

TWO amateur sportsmen from the Bronx went out to the zoo and killed three bears and four tigers.

IT'S a good thing they ran out of bullets or the city would have lost an elephant.

WITH fellows like this around, even our cats aren't safe.

HUNDREDS of farmers are now keeping their cows in the house.

ONE man took all his pigs in the parlor and pulled the shades down.

HE even carried the horses upstairs and locked them in the closet.

ONE hunter from the West thought that Central Park was a forest preserve.

HE was an expert marksman. He aimed at a policeman and shot his bicycle from underneath him.

HE said he didn't know it was a cop because he had his hat off.

HE learned his lesson. He never shoots at anything now that has a badge on.

THE city didn't know whether to run him out of the park or pin stars on the animals.

WHEN a man pays fifteen or twenty dollars for a hunting license he wants to kill something even if he has to shoot the guy who sells it to him.

CATS OVERRUN TOWN

By Temple Manning

IN the little town of St. Ives, on the Cornish coast, every tourist or visitor gets a little shock of amazement at the spectacle that presents itself. Cats are everywhere—underfoot, scurrying about, sunning themselves, washing their paws and generally occupied with the duties that make up the life of any cat.

We might, perhaps, on first glance think that this abundance of cats was a nuisance. There are few of us who would care to have more than one or two cats about all the time. Even the most enthusiastic cat-lover contents himself with a few of his pets. But among the people of St. Ives there could be no such thing as a superabundance of cats. They encourage the growth of the feline population with every means at their disposal.

The inhabitants of this strange little town explain this phenomenon in this fashion: The town is very old. Some of the houses, indeed, are five hundred years old. And the fishing gear, which is very precious to this fishing village, is stored in the basements during the Winter months.

The implications are obvious. Where there are old wood and dampness there are likely to be rats. The cats are the protectors and saviors of the industry of the town.

There is one peculiar thing about the cats of St. Ives. They do some fishing on their own account. They comp over the sands and prance out among the waves. They will watch a shallow pool for hours until some small fish or crab emerges within reach, and then pounce upon him.

There is an old rhyme that is frequently sung about St. Ives and the visitor finds that the contents have the virtue of being true. It is:

"As I was going to St. Ives
I met a man with seven wives.
Every wife had seven sacks.
Every sack had seven cats.
Every cat has seven kits.
Kits, cats, sacks and wives.
How many were there going to St. Ives?"

You can easily see that the cats and their offsprings were far in the majority in the crowd.

George Bet on Horses

To the Friend of the People:

Please settle this question: Did George Washington ever bet on horse racing?

MICHAEL R. REILLY.

Enfield, N. H.

[George loved horse racing. He took the usual bets. He went at one time as far as Philadelphia to witness a race.—Ed.]

Cure for Biting Nails

To the Friend of the People:

While watching your nerves may help to cure that young woman mentioned in your column addicted to the habit of biting her finger nails in company, the most effective cure is painting her fingers with tincture of asafoetida constantly. This will cure her.

DR. BENJAMIN DANIELS,
Columbus avenue, Boston.

Boards Cheaper Than Coats

To the Friend of the People:

Reference in your column to the pools of water that form in front of the South Station at the crossing when it rains, suggests to the street department that they should place boards over the pools.

As for imitating Sir Walter Raleigh in throwing your cloak over this miniature lake and allowing the fair sex to pass over, such a suggestion is good enough for his day, but clothing is too expensive today for such act of chivalry.

CHARLES WHITTAKER.

Boston Manners

To the Friend of the People:

We formerly lived in Washington, D. C., where we think the average manners of children are more respectful than here in Boston.

Children here are too loose in their expressions. When replying to the call of parents they often yell back: "Yes" or "No," or "What in thunder do you want?"

In Washington we hear children say to such calls: "Yes, Mama" or "Yes, Papa, what can I do for you?"

Then the freedom with which youngsters address their elders as, "How are you, Tom or Henry?"

We also notice that the term woman is more frequently used than lady. Have we no ladies in Boston?

Ex-Agent Well Named

To the Friend of the People:

According to the press reports, the Rev. T. Thoroughman of Lawton, Oklahoma, has been ousted from his position as prohibition agent.

I know him well as a fine fellow everywhere. He is named well and that represents him.

The prohibition directors will find, as they have in some sections, that merely ousting an agent does not improve the system.

To Keep Religion Warm

To the Friend of the People:

President Coolidge says in your news column that the United States needs more religion, in his recent address before the Congregationalists at Washington.

Roger W. Babson said almost the same thing at the Old South Meeting House, a day ago.

What we need most of all at present is coal. Just coal, to keep what religion we have, warm.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

ON "THE FATE OF A COPYIST."

SOME GIRLS TRY to be ORIGINAL;
Others don't HAVE TO—
They Just ARE. But Those are the MINORITY,
And the MAJORITY
COPY THEM.
How queer!
IMITATORS are merely
GHOSTS that PARADE;
They have the OUTLINE,
But no SUBSTANCE
BEHIND IT.
And they STRUT,
POSTURE and POSE,
And REAL people
See THROUGH THEM.
GHOSTS, of course, NEVER Alarm EACH OTHER.
And many GET BY;
But the MAIN POINT about
An imitator IS that Though they MAY deceive
Others, they DO DECEIVE Themselves; for
It is what is
INSIDE that COUNTS.
A FULL cup of GOOD wine
Can find A PLACE on MANY a TABLE,
But an empty
Cup is PUSHED ASIDE.

MANY TRICKS OF HOW TO LOOK SLENDER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A BOOK has come to me entitled "Dress and Look Slender," by Jane Warren Wells. It is from the Women's Institute of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and I suspect that Wells is the pen-name for someone connected with that institute.

But, anyway, it is a good book. Everyone cannot be slender, but everyone can look slenderer than he is.

Fat is the curse of most people; it is the thing that all women dread, and this book gives some very good suggestions on how to appear thin.

It is all a matter of lines, apparently. Long straight lines give you a thin and tall appearance, and cross lines make you look fat and dumpy. Dresses, therefore, that are planned in parallel vertical lines are best for a fleshy person.

There are many tricks that can be played by those who want to look slender. They all depend upon optical illusion. A slender woman may actually appear stout by failing to dress in accordance with these illusions, and conversely a stout woman can appear slender.

Attention should be directed to all details, such, for instance, as walking. Some people walk as though they weighed a thousand pounds, and some people are light on their feet. It is important not to let the body slump down. Exercises can be found that cultivate grace and ease of motion. It is a good plan, when you are doing the housework and nobody is around looking on, to turn on the music and do dusting to music. It gives you grace of movement.

The stout woman is warned not to stand with her feet apart or her arms akimbo. She should make a practice of keeping her hands comfortably in front of her.

She should not cross her arms. Two fat arms can look like four, if you are not careful.

She should stretch and bend and do a number of other exercises to keep herself limber.

She should stand up straight, like a soldier. Most fat women slump down, emphasizing their fatness. They should hold the head high and the chin up.

Among necklaces, those that are slender and well-made may help a stout woman with her collar line and slenderize her face, but heavy crystals and fat beads are liable to make her look fleshier than she is.

Big folk must keep away from babyishness and learn to stand on their own two feet and look straight ahead toward the goal of slenderness.

A graceful fan helps, and fat fingers are shortened and made to look more fat by heavy rings. Earrings widen the face, but they may be appropriate and graceful.

THE SNAIL IS A TRUE ARISTOCRAT

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I READ the other day a statement that a snail can safely walk on the edge of a razor. The statement may be true, yet I think I should rather be a fly than a snail in such a situation. But, however that may be, there are few animals that present more points of interest than a snail.

In the first place, he is, by descent, an aristocrat, with a family tree at least fifty million years long. As some old families in England boast that they "came in with the Conqueror," meaning that their ancestors may have held the stirrup for "William" of Normandy when he set out to invade England, so the snail, with his house on his back and his meals on the ends of his horns, might boast that he came in with the Gasteropoda, meaning the "belly-footed" tribe of mollusks, who began to spread over the earth in that measureless expanse of prehistoric time called by the imposing name of the Silurian Age.

Astonished Gaze

Perhaps that is why the snail is so proverbially slow. A creature that has stalked majestically down the eons from the Silurian era, crossing the endless spaces of time that geologists grandiloquently refer to as Devonian, Carboniferous, Triassic, Jurassic, Cretaceous, Eocene, Miocene, Phocene, may feel that he belongs to eternity, not to chronology, and may look with contempt upon our excessive regard for such petty things as minutes, hours, days and years.

The Gasteropods are a very large family, and the snail, as we know him, represents only a relatively recent branch of it. But he retains the main characteristic of his most remote ancestors. The family, moreover, has the distinction of living now in the enjoyment of what appears to be the very culmination of its type.

The Gasteropods, as I have said, are a large family. Zoologists reckon that they have developed 23,000 species, of which 7,000 are extinct, and 16,000 now flourishing. In some of their forms they have been very useful to man. Some make excellent bait for fish.

The famous Tyrian purple, the royal color of antiquity, which today modern dye can equal in beauty, was obtained from two species of Gasteropods, marine relatives of the snail, the Murex and the Purpura. The water-inhabiting animals called limpets, ear-shells, periwinkles, cowries and many others are members of the family. Their shells are often exceedingly delicate, graceful and beautiful in color. One of the fresh-water snails, called the Limnea, often turns itself belly upward and glides with its long sole along the underside of the water surface.

This sole, or endless foot, of the snail is a very curious organ. One can readily believe that nature contrived it when she was making her first experiments in locomotive machinery. The snail advances, by contracting the muscles of its foot, which is almost as long as its body.

The eyes on their two long flexible stalks are equally curious.

New Eyes

They have the advantage over us that they can grow new eyes when the original ones are destroyed. One naturalist says that they can renew their eyes twenty times. Man would probably be satisfied if he could renew his once.

The snail lays its eggs in the ground in the Springtime, and during the Winter he buries himself, cements the opening of his hiding place and falls into a long sleep, which, in particular circumstances, has been known to be prolonged for years—during which, perhaps, ancestral dreams come to him of that infinitely remote epoch, ages before the appearance of man, when his predecessors first opened their strange eyes in the waters of the primeval ocean.

THOSE WHO WIN TOO FAST MAY LOSE IN END

You are so imbued with the idea of making a lot of money quickly that you are not giving proper attention to your every-day job.

You have heard of men who acquired fortunes in a few months making more than you expect in your entire life at the present job.

So you are disgusted with your daily job. You think it is a waste of time.

Then you begin to dream and your work suffers.

When you balance up those who made money fast and then lost it, with those who made a slower, steadier climb, the balance is in favor of slower, surer progress.

Perhaps you have accumulated a little bunch of money by faithful work and slow savings, and now you are tired and want to see wealth come faster. That is when you will be meat for the land sharks, the bond sellers and the get-rich-quick promoters, if you don't keep your head level.

Some men are natural buyers and sellers, far-sighted, keen and cool in calculating. If your work has not made you this sort, watch out.

Plug along at what you are accustomed to, rather than fatten the other fellow with your hard earned dollars.
